PRESENTATION

On 1st January 2006, my predecessor Fr Pascual Chávez Villanueva, the Rector Major at that time introduced the yearly Strenna with a letter entitled: “And Jesus increased in wisdom and in years and in favour with God and man” (Lk 2,52)¹. It was an invitation by the Rector Major to renew our commitment to the family, taking up the challenge issued by John Paul II to defend life through the family and also on the occasion of the 150th anniversary of the death of Mamma Margaret, mamma of Don Bosco and a true mamma to the boys of the Oratory of Valdocco.

Ten years later I offer the whole Salesian Family around the world this new Strenna, which is meant to focus our attention on families in the most diverse situations in which we find ourselves. The subject has been suggested, and it could not be otherwise, by the priority that the Church wants to give to the need for ever greater and more appropriate pastoral care for families.

Pope Francis decided to devote two Synods to reflection on the «Family», following on from some of the pastoral ideas that he had proposed in the Apostolic Exhortation «Evangelii Gaudium» in 2013. There was the Extraordinary Synod in 2014 and the Ordinary one in 2015. After these Synods came the Apostolic Exhortation «Amoris Laetitia», signed by the Pope on 19 March this year 2016.

I think that this stage in the life of the Church that we are now living through demands that we the Salesian Family of Don Bosco give priority to the educative pastoral care that we need to devote to families around the Salesian world.

As is the case every year, the Strenna is addressed to each and every one of the members and of the groups of the Salesian Family, with the aim of making us more aware of our task and of our duty towards families, so that we may find practical ways of carrying out that service of accompaniment that is expected of us.

1. THE TOPIC OF THE STRENNA

When we say: «We are Family! Every home a school of Life and Love», we want to declare from the start that all of us, each one of us has had the experience of being born into a family, with the good things and the limitations of every single family. We are born into the bosom of a family and are essentially part of a family, where, ideally we find a school of life and of love. We are convinced that the family is the human experience in which we learn the art of life and of love.

The family, all families throughout the world – while being different – are made up of individuals who love, speak to and communicate with each other, who share and make sacrifices for each other; people who look out for each other and protect each other's lives.

We grew up as people living normally in a family enjoying the warmth of our home in which from our parents or from one of them we received our name and the dignity this brings. In the family we experienced affection for the first time and enjoyed the sense of «feeling at home». In the family we learned to say thank you, to ask for forgiveness and to ask for permission.

We are well aware that not all babies who are born have the good fortune of experiencing this, but while taking account of the diversity of contexts and cultures, I think it can be said that most of us have experienced this kind of family life.

Someone might say: What does this have to do with us as the Salesian Family? It is relevant because we ourselves, as the Salesian Family of Don Bosco, are the first to whom this message is addressed, since we are well aware of the links that bind us together as a religious family. It is a family within which, while taking into account the diversity of our 31 groups (Congregations, Institutes of Consecrated Life, Societies of Apostolic life, Associations of the Faithful, etc.), the respective Constitutions, Regulations or Statutes present the family spirit and the family atmosphere as the constitutive element of our being, of our identity, and they make explicit reference to pastoral activity in the family and with families.

This helps us realise our responsibility as the Salesian Family, a responsibility that in practical terms means that we cannot turn our gaze in a different direction to that which the Universal Church under the guidance of Pope Francis is strongly committed. It is a responsibility that demands that we as educators of boys and girls, teenagers and young people look through «Salesian eyes» at the real situation of families nowadays and in all humility offer our contribution.

2. AN INVITATION TO A CALM AND QUIET READING OF THE EXHORTATION AMORIS LAETITIA, WITH A HEART OPEN TO DIALOGUE AND TO AN ENCOUNTER

I now invite everyone of you to read carefully and calmly with a heart open to dialogue and personal involvement to what the Apostolic Exhortation Amoris Laetitia (AL) is saying to us, in order to discover what the document is offering us and requesting from us. Anyone who is a believer and loves the Church will realise that this Apostolic Exhortation is indeed a service to the human race and a true spiritual and pastoral treasure. It is from our awareness of being the «Salesian Family» that we want to become involved.

The Exhortation of Pope Francis is based on the Magisterium of the recent Popes, Saint John Paul II and Benedict XVI, and on the two Synods of 2014 and 2015, the final reports of which are quoted in abundance. It therefore sums up the Church's reflection over many years, but at the same time it introduces a change of tone, of language and of perspective which moves from the canonical level to a more pastoral one. The Supreme Pontiff himself declares: «We also need to be humble and realistic, acknowledging that at times... we have proposed a far too abstract and almost artificial theological ideal of marriage, far removed from the concrete situations and practical possibilities of real families. This excessive idealization, especially when we have failed to inspire trust in God's grace, has not helped to make marriage more desirable and attractive, but quite the opposite»².

INTRODUCTION (AL nn. 1-7)

The Exhortation speaks about the joy of Love as it is lived in the family and of the rejoicing of the Church in this regard. As we have said, it brings together the contributions of two Synods³ and points out that the family has very many complex and varied features in which religious, political, cultural, economic and legal aspects all come together. In such a varied and diverse situation, we are all called to safeguard family life with love. Rather than a problem families are an opportunity. In fact we can say that in spite of the crises with which the family nowadays is faced the new generations still see it as the safest place for them in which they can find unconditional acceptance.

CHAPTER I.

THE FAMILY IN THE LIGHT OF THE WORD OF GOD (AL nn. 8-30)

The family appears frequently in the Scriptures, from the opening pages until the book of Revelation; they speak about generations, about love stories, of family crises, of violence in the family. «The idyllic picture presented in Psalm 128⁴ is not at odds with a bitter truth found throughout sacred Scripture, that is the presence of pain, evil and violence that break up families and their communion of life and love»⁵.

At the centre of this Psalm 128 is a couple, a man and a woman and their love story. «So God created man in his own image; in the image of God he created him; male and female he created them» (Gen 1,27). This couple who love and generate life is an image of God the Creator and Saviour. This fruitful love is a sign of the intimate reality of God, because God in the depth of his mystery is not solitude but family.

The experience of suffering and bloodshed in the family

Suffering, evil and violence are a reality present in the family from its very beginning, as sacred Scripture describes it. In the first family there is Cain's murder of his brother Abel; there are great disputes in the families of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, Tobias and Job... In his sickness Job bitterly complains about his family in these words:

«He has put my brothers far from me, My kinsfolk and my close friends have failed me... The guests in my house have forgotten me... I am repulsive to my wife, loathsome to the sons of my own mother. Those I loved best have turned against me...» (Job 19,13-19)⁶.

The Gospels too report many family tragedies and sad situations at which Jesus was present: the illness of Peter's mother-in-law, the death of Lazarus, the death of the daughter of Jairus, the widow of Naim's tragic loss, the lack of wine at the marriage feast in Cana of Galilee... This makes us understand that the family as presented in the Bible is not an abstract reality: there are crises, sufferings, tribulations, weakness, sorrow, cries of anguish... The same thing can be said about the lights and shadows that illuminate or obscure family situations, or work which is the means of sustenance and something that can be a source of happiness or sorrow and anxiety.

CHAPTER II.

THE EXPERIENCES AND THE CHALLENGES OF FAMILIES (AL nn. 31-57)

In this chapter Pope Francis offers a vast panorama of the problems and the challenges that affect families nowadays, without presuming to present an exhaustive analysis of a complex social institution that the family has become at the present time.

In a context marked by profound changes, cultural, structural and in life styles which deeply affect the family, the Pope identifies the following situations:

- Individualism, internal tensions, stress, a reduction in the number of marriages, civil unions;
- Loneliness, self-centredness, sexuality commercialized, the commercialization of the body, separation, divorce, fall in the birthrate, a mentality against having children;

⁶ Bold type has been used to highlight references to family relationships.

- New models of families, the development of biotechnologies, the sexual revolution, sterilization (female and male), abortion, the weakening of religious practice;
- Poverty, the lack of decent or affordable housing, the absence of an adequate policy for the family, insecurity at work;
- Domestic violence, terrorism, drug abuse, economic insecurity, the breakdown of family relationships, resentment and hatred, disfunctional families, the weakening of family ties;
- Polygamy, genital mutilation, verbal, physical and sexual violence, sexual abuse, discrimination, feminism, male chauvinism, the lack of the affective education of children, the ideology of 'gender'...

In the face of these difficult situations, it is however necessary to reaffirm that the welfare of the family is fundamental to the well-being of the world and of the Church. For this reason the family ought to be the focus of attention in the Church's mission while at the same time it should be recognised that practice of the mission has not always been what was required. «We have often been on the defensive, wasting pastoral energy on denouncing a decadent world without being proactive in proposing ways of finding true happiness»⁷.

CHAPTER III.

LOOKING TO JESUS: THE VOCATION OF THE FAMILY (AL nn. 58-88)

Jesus gazed at the women and the men of his time; he went to meet them with love and tenderness, accompanying their steps with truth, patience and mercy while he proclaimed the demands of the Kingdom of God, and he accompanies us too today in our commitment to live and to hand on the Gospel.

In and among the families of today the Gospel message should always resound, that which is «most beautiful, most excellent, most appealing and at the same time most necessary... because nothing is more solid, profound, secure, meaningful and wise than that message»⁸.

Our teaching on marriage and the family, the Pope affirms, must necessarily be inspired and transformed in the light of the first message, the message of tenderness and love that comes from the Gospel; it is not simply the defence of a dry and lifeless doctrine.

In the Gospel Jesus takes up and brings to fulfilment the Father's plan for marriage: he restores marriage as a gift and proposes its indissolubility, restoring the original plan of God for the family and for marriage (Mt 19,3-8).

Christian marriage is seen by the Church as an expression of the covenant of the Son of God with human nature. But it should not be forgotten that, faced with the difficult situations in which wounded families find themselves, it is always necessary to bear in mind the criterion of discernment. The degree of responsibility is not the same in all cases; judgements should be avoided that do not take into account the complexity of the various situations, and it is necessary to be attentive to the way in which people are living and suffering because of their circumstances.

A fundamental point in this chapter is that of the family as the transmitter of life. Marriage is considered as a community of life in which conjugal love between a man and a woman is ordered also to fruitfulness. The spouses to whom God not grants the gift of having children can have a life full of meaning from a human and a Christian point of view as they strive not to close in on themselves. For this reason the family is the sanctuary of life, the human place where life at its various stages is generated, cared for and protected.

This essential dimension is accompanied by the challenge of the education of children. Parents are responsible for the all- round development and education of their children; this is a very important duty and a primary right of parents. States and the governments of nations have the obligation to provide an educational service by way of assistance, but according to their own convictions parents have the right to freely choose the type of accessible and good quality education that they want for their children. The school cannot take the place of parents but rather complements them.

Unfortunately nowadays a wide gap has opened up between the family and society. There is a crisis in the partnership between society and the family, and in such a situation the Church is concerned more than ever to collaborate through its specialized pastoral activity in helping parents in their mission of education.

In a special way the Christian family as the domestic Church, living according to the teachings of the Gospel, is called upon to help to bring to maturity the ecclesial experience of communion among people: communion, forgiveness, tenderness, fraternal love, prayer...

CHAPTER IV.

LOVE IN MARRIAGE (AL nn. 89-164)

In this chapter the Pope presents a theological vision of love in marriage and in the family commenting on several expressions in the hymn of love from the first letter of Saint Paul to the Corinthians, highlighting some essential attitudes:

«Love is patient, love is kind: love is not jealous or boastful; it is not arrogant or rude. Love does not insist on its own way, it is not irritable or resentful; it does not rejoice at wrong but rejoices in the right. Love bears all things, believes all things, hopes all things, endures all things» (1 Cor 13,4-7).

Patience is not simply a matter of putting up with everything; it does not mean letting others ill-treat us, or accepting physical aggression or allowing others to treat us as objects.

Patience is a characteristic of the God of the Covenant. He shows his patience through Mercy. Therefore for us patience ought to be an experience of compassion and of self-control in not reacting with anger in the face of the weaknesses of others, and so not allowing ourselves to be overcome by evil, or to be discouraged in doing what is right.

The Pope also speaks about an attitude of service as a dynamic and creative approach in the face of other peoples' needs, as that kindly love that seeks what is best for others; a generous love that does good things because love is not only a question of feelings but the ability to do what is good.

It is being happy about what is best for others because where there is love there cannot be displeasure with regard to the well-being of others. True love appreciates the success of others not seeing it as a personal threat; it sincerely values every human person recognising their right to happiness. Envy on the other hand means being sad about another person's good fortune, which shows that their happiness is of no concern to us.

In this list of Gospel attitudes in life there is also reference to pride, which certainly is not compatible with love, because pride is a desire for glory by someone who considers themselves superior to others. Love, on the other hand does not exaggerate its own importance before others; on the contrary it is attentive, positive, understanding, takes care, protects and helps the weak; arrogant people the Pope goes so far as to say are unbearable.

So that there can be a real encounter with the other person a kind look is necessary; looking at the other with a kindly eye. Loving kindness builds bonds, makes new links, creates new networks of integration, knits together a firm social fabric. Someone who loves is able to say words of encouragement, build up trust and strength, console and energize.

Jesus was like that. He loved people... He said: "Take heart my son, your sins are forgiven" (Mt 9,2); "Great is your faith!"

(Mt 15,28); "Arise!" (Mk 5,41); "Go in peace" (Lk 7,50); "Be not afraid" (Mt 14,27). His were words that infused courage and hope. In our families we can learn much from the words and especially from the friendly attitude of Jesus.

Detachment is another component of love. To love others we must first love ourselves but not with a love that seeks its own interests. "Let each of you look not only to his own interests, but also to the interests of others" (Phil 2,4).

Being ready to forgive means not taking account of evil; it is a question of adopting a positive attitude, trying to understand other people's weaknesses and finding excuses for them, as Jesus did: "Father forgive them; for they know not what they do" (Lk 23,34). To be able to forgive we need to have an experience that is liberating; we need to feel the embrace of the unconditional love of God... who loves without limit.

Love rejoices with others, rejoices in the truth, is pleased at the good of others, recognising their dignity, their good works. Love gives of itself, is able to take a risk... because "God loves a cheerful giver" ("2 Cor 9,7) and "it is more blessed to give than to receive" (Acts 20, 35).

Love bears all things, believes all things, hopes all things, endures all things...; this brings out very strongly how counter-cultural love is in being able to face up to everything. Love does not damage the reputation of others and does not unload its feelings of resentment. Love also welcomes someone who causes them inconvenience, knowing how to live with imperfection, excuses and remains silent in the face of the limitations of the one loved.

Spouses, the Pope writes, need to learn to speak well of each other, highlighting the good points of their partner and not making so much of the weaknesses. This means watching what they say because sometimes the tongue "is full of deadly poison" (James 3,8).

Love is motivated by trust. There is no need to keep a check on the other person, to follow every step they take to prevent them escaping from us. Love leaves others free, has no wish to keep a check on everything, to possess, to control the other. Love leaves room for autonomy, for openness, for freedom since where there is no love there is no freedom.

Love hopes all things. It is important to believe that the other person can change and become better; to believe that a growth in maturity is possible and that hidden potential can bear fruit.

Love, sanctified by the sacrament of matrimony or “conjugal love”, is dynamic and continues to grow under the inspiration of Grace (since it is God who sanctifies); and if this love does not grow it can be dangerous. It is said that growth in Conjugal Love is possible through divine Grace, but it also grows with the help of human effort, of inner silence, of a listening heart, of detachment, of dialogue, of prayer, of the education of the emotions (overcoming a lack of self-control and obsessiveness), of the attitude of someone who knows how to give importance to the other person and not under-rate the requests and the wishes of the other.

Towards the end of the chapter the Pope refers to celibacy and virginity for the sake of the Kingdom. Love – the Pope says – shows itself in different ways and in different styles of life in accordance with the different vocations. Celibacy and virginity for the sake of the Kingdom are forms of love, they are a gift of God (1 Cor 7,7). There is neither superiority nor inferiority among the different vocations. Matrimony and celibacy are two complementary vocations.

CHAPTER V.

LOVE MADE FRUITFUL (AL nn. 165-198)

Love is always open to welcome new life; love always gives life, and the family is the place where life is generated, where life is welcomed and grows. Every new life comes as a gift from God as a sign of his selfless love.

The Pope states that every woman shares in “the mystery of creation, which is renewed with each birth;”⁹ for this reason motherhood is a collaboration with God in the miracle of every new life.

As we read in sacred Scripture:

«You knit me together in my mother’s womb» (Psalm 139,13).
 «Before I formed you in the womb I knew you, and before you were born I consecrated you» (Jer 1,5).

The Pope with the heart of a real Father and Shepherd writes: «With great affection I urge all future mothers: keep happy and let nothing rob you of the interior joy of motherhood. Your child deserves your happiness. Don’t let fears, worries, other people’s comments or problems lessen your joy at being God’s means of bringing a new life to the world»¹⁰.

Every child has the right to receive the love of a mother and of a father, each of them necessary for its harmonious and complete growth to maturity. Respecting the dignity of a child means affirming its need and its natural right to have a mother and a father, collaborators with the love of God. Father and mother together teach the value of complementarity, the coming together of different people where each one brings their own identity, paternity and maternity, masculine and feminine, for the harmonious development of the child.

We are aware – the Pope says – that nowadays many children and young people suffer from the absence of their parents; there is a lack of a maternal presence and a crisis of paternity. And particularly in the face of these difficult situations such as the crisis of paternity he says: «Mothers are the strongest antidote to the spread of self-centred individualism... It is they who testify to the beauty of life»¹¹. Certainly, a society without mothers would be dehumanized, for mothers are always, even in the worst of times, witnesses to tenderness, dedication, moral strength.

⁹ JOHN PAUL II, Catechesis (12 March 1980), 3: Teachings III, 1 (1980), 543, quoted in Amoris Laetitia, 168.

Finally there is the idea of the enlarged family. Motherhood is not a solely biological reality, but is expressed in diverse ways, for example in adoption. Adopting is an act of love; through adoption the fruitfulness of love is extended and enlarged.

CHAPTER VI.

SOME PASTORAL PERSPECTIVES (AL nn. 199-258)

It is not a question here of presenting a set of rules but of being attentive to the deepest yearnings of human beings and of proposing values. What is needed is an evangelization that denounces the cultural, social, political and economic conditioning factors of the present time. A pastoral ministry is needed that opens up a dialogue and collaboration with social structures, that encourages and supports lay people in the cultural and socio-political fields.

The contribution of the Church to the family requires an appropriate family ministry and better training for priests, male and female religious and lay workers.

In this pastoral ministry it is necessary to help young people to discover the value and the richness of marriage through the process of preparation for engaged couples which helps them in their genuine growth in love for each other. They need to be accompanied in the process of preparation so as to be able to enter into marriage as a vocation, as a process of growing to maturity in love.

It is also essential to ensure a good preparation of the celebration of the marriage and accompaniment in the first years of married life. In the same way, becoming fathers and mothers, which need to be decisions taken responsibly, presupposes the formation of the consciences of the spouses.

CHAPTER VII.

STRENGTHENING THE EDUCATION OF CHILDREN (AL nn. 259-290)

Parents always have an influence for good or ill on the moral development of their children. This educational mission of the family is important and complex. The family cannot withdraw from being the best place for the support, accompaniment and guidance of children. Giving this up is never a solution. On the contrary, educating means creating processes leading to the mature living of freedom; educating is the fostering of all-round development and the cultivating of real and genuine autonomy.

The education of children includes the task of fostering responsible freedom so that they may be able to cope with critical moments in life wisely, safely and intelligently.

It is also the task of parents to promote the ethical formation of their children, a formation that cannot be delegated or entrusted to others. It always needs to be undertaken in a positive manner, speaking in a way that recognises the sensitivities of children and is intended to show them what is best for them in particular situations. Education encourages the formation of good habits and develops the responsible freedom that ensures a mature autonomy.

One educational dimension not to be neglected is sex education, which ought to be given when appropriate. This is an education that includes respect for and appreciation of the differences, that help young people to accept their own body in its individuality.

In the way of being female or male not only biological or genetic factors come into play, since sexual difference involves many elements... Sexual difference (being male or female) is the work of God.

Finally we should not forget that responsibility for the handing on of the faith to their children is also that of the parents. The family still ought to be the place in which the depth and the beauty of the faith are taught and appreciated. This presupposes that the parents really have trust in God, whom they seek and have need of, and that they recognise that children are sensitive to symbols, gestures and stories. It is essential that children can see the faith experience and prayer in their parents in practical ways.

CHAPTER VIII.

ACCOMPANYING, DISCERNING AND INTEGRATING WEAKNESS (AL nn. 291-312)

The Church needs to accompany families giving them confidence and hope. There are however, wounded families; and so the work of the Church is often like that of a “field hospital”. In our pastoral activity it is necessary to make use of the law of gradual progression since nowadays the absence of a real understanding of marriage and of the value of commitment is very widespread... It follows that in order to promote Christian marriage what is needed is a pastoral approach of mercy, encouragement, dialogue and discernment...

Pope Francis points out that many young people and adults, under the influence of a now widespread mentality, prefer simply living together. It is a sad situation that needs to be faced up to in a constructive way by being aware of it, and by offering patient and sensitive guidance as Jesus used with the Samaritan woman.

At this point in the Apostolic Exhortation the Pope deals with the important and sensitive issue of the discernment of the circumstances, that requires careful examination and deep reflection.

During the Synod, the Synod Fathers looked into various situations of weakness and of imperfection, experienced by a large number of families. The approach of the Church must not be that of condemning people. It is essential to consider the complexity of the situations. No one can be condemned... We are called to exercise the divine pedagogy, avoiding any occasion of scandal.

In ordinary circumstances it is for the priests and pastoral workers to accompany and to promote discernment, seeking to understand the degree of responsibility, which is not the same for everyone. The thinking behind the mission ought to be that of pastoral mercy. It is necessary to accompany the various stages of growth of individuals with mercy and patience.

CHAPTER IX.

THE SPIRITUALITY OF MARRIAGE AND THE FAMILY (AL nn. 313-325)

Love takes on different forms according to the state of life to which each one has been called. The spirituality of Marriage is a spirituality of the bond, nourished by divine love and by communion in the family, which is lived as a path of holiness in ordinary life: «If we love one another, God abides in us» (1 Jn 4,12).

When the family succeeds in centring itself in Christ, He unifies and illuminates the whole of family life with its problems and sufferings. In this way any split is avoided and family prayer is the best way of expressing and consolidating Paschal faith.

The Spirituality of exclusive love. In marriage the spouses live with that sense of belonging completely to one other person taking up the challenge and the yearning of growing old together; for this reason everyday they renew before God the decision to be faithful whatever the passing of the days may bring. In this partnership each spouse is for the other a sign and an instrument of the closeness of the Lord: "I am with you always to the close of the age" (Mt 28,20).

The Spirituality of availability and of consolation. Christian spouses are cooperators in grace and in the witness of faith for each other. God invites them to create and to care for the whole life of the family, where the person loved deserves their total attention. Jesus is the model for us because whenever someone approached him to speak with him he gazed on them and looked at them with love (cf Mk 10,21); he awakened in the other person the joy of feeling themselves loved.

We are well aware that no family is perfect, but needs to develop its ability to love gradually. Every family needs positive encouragement.

Families, let us move on. Let us continue to move on. What is proposed to us urges us to go further. Let us not be discouraged as we look at our limitations, but neither let us give up from seeking that fulness of love and of communion that we have been promised.

3. EVERY HOME A SCHOOL OF LIFE AND OF LOVE. OUR EDUCATIVE-PASTORAL CONTRIBUTION

3.1. The family the choice of the incarnate God¹²

«God chose a mother in order to become man and a family in order to grow and mature as such. It is a truth of faith that a Christian cannot ignore when he wants to reflect on the family». This is how the article I want to refer to begins. In fact belief in the incarnation of God is a distinctive element of the Christian faith as the Catechism of the Catholic Church affirms. Certainly if the reason for our salvation was the love that God has for us then the incarnation was the way of bringing it about. But in this fact there is something else that really draws our attention. The decision of God to assume in the Son the human condition leads to two very significant facts: that of being born of a woman, becoming the son of the Virgin Mary, and that of being born into a family, that is to say the fact of having sought a family in which to be born and to grow as a human being.

One thing we know very well and which deeply moves us is the fact that God became son and he himself told his parents about his birth and convinced them to give their consent – to say yes.

Mary is full of grace before being mother; the son has already been thought about by God before being wished for by the mother. Mary does not ask for a sign in order to believe. God proposes a plan to her of which she does not feel capable. The virgin will conceive a son, who is not the fruit of a previous married life (Lk 1,35).

As far as Joseph is concerned, and different from what happened to Mary, God reveals his plan not in a conversation (Lk 1, 28), but in a dream (Mt 1,18.24). Joseph ‘dreams’ what God wants of him after the shock he experiences at the forced entry of God into his marriage: that which is conceived in Mary is the work of the Spirit (Mt 1,18.20). And God, who “has usurped” his paternity without him knowing about it and without his consent now asks him to accept the fait accompli.

Both Mary and Joseph, although in different ways since their responsibilities and roles within the family were different, had to pay a price for being the family of God both during the infancy and the boyhood of Jesus and also during his public ministry following a path that was not without its many difficulties. This experience makes the family of Nazareth and the families of yesterday, of today and of all times closer together.

The salvific will of God, that is the fact that God wanted to save us, “obliged” him to make himself like us. Once he was made man he wanted to learn how to be like us, learning to grow up as a man within the bosom of a family, “the cradle of life and of love in which a person is born and grows”¹³.

¹³ Christifideles Laici, 40

We can say with certainty that it was a family that “humanized the Son of God” and this undeniable fact gives to the family an exceptional sacred value.

3.2. Don Bosco, in a family but without a father

«I was not yet two years old when the merciful Lord hit us with a sad bereavement. My dearly loved Father, strong and healthy still young and and actively interested in promoting a good Christian upbringing for his offspring, one day came home from work covered in sweat and imprudently went down into a cold cellar. That night he developed a high temperature the first sign of a serious illness. Every effort to cure him proved vain. Within a few days he was at death’s door, Stenghtened by all the comforts of religion, he recommended to my mother confidence in God, then died aged only 34 on 12 May 1817¹⁴. I do not know how I reacted on that sad occasion. One thing only do I remember and it is my earliest memory. We were all going out of the room where he had died and I insisted on staying behind. My grieving Mother addressed me – ‘Come John, come with me.’ – ‘If papa is not coming I don’t want to come’, I answered. – ‘My poor son’ my mother replied. ‘Come with me, you no longer have a father.’¹⁵

In this way Don Bosco himself 56 years later described that moment in his life. Don Bosco was very sparing when he spoke about himself, particularly in expressing his feelings, but with these few lines he displayed his tears, his inability as a little child to understand what was happening, realising that his father was not moving and did not reply to him, and the weeping of his mother now a widow, who on that day saw her life change completely.

Whether the memory of that moment remained so vivid in Don Bosco or whether, that being hardly credible as one writer believes¹⁶, according to whom it is more likely that it is a memory of what the grownups had told him while he was still a child, in any case Don Bosco tells us about the new circumstances his family found themselves in, which now were no longer what many other "normal" families were in, and they had to learn to grow up and develop without the person of the father and with the person of a mother who certainly had shown exceptional gifts. We can come to understand this from everything that Don Bosco describes in a very under-stated manner. The great human and Christian qualities of that peasant woman, a widow and a mother with a family of five to care for can be seen. A woman who rejects a proposal for a second marriage that would have been very helpful for her. Her three sons would have been entrusted to a good guardian who would have taken great care of them. But the generous woman replied: «The guardian could only be their friend, but I am a mother to these sons of mine. All the gold in the world could never make me abandon them»¹⁷. Don Bosco tells how his mother's greatest care was given «to instructing her sons in their religion, making them value obedience, and keeping them busy with tasks suited to their age.

From this we can see that the family of little John suffering from being an orphan could enjoy the deep love of a mother who consecrated her whole life to her sons, a mother who was for them the first and most important religious teacher; a woman taught them to be responsible, to work hard and be diligent, and to show loving care for those poorer than themselves. A mother who in the midst of so many difficulties and straightened circumstances did everything possible so that her son might follow his vocation and the call to the priesthood.

¹⁷ ISTITUTO STORICO SALESIANO, o.c. 1175. Don Bosco Publications New Rochelle Memoirs of the Oratory p. 9.

Having considered Don Bosco's experience, it seems to me a good idea to refer to another great woman and saint in the Salesian Family, Mary Domenica Mazzarello, who in her turn was "marked" by her family situation, even though it is a matter of a family from several points of view different from that of Don Bosco. The state of poverty was similar, common to simple peasants, but the childhood and the family of Mary Domenica Mazzarello were very different. Mary Domenica did not grow up without a father and she was the first of a numerous group of siblings. She did not have to leave the place of her birth, Mornese, during her childhood and youth. She certainly shared the same atmosphere of piety. In fact it was a different family model that profoundly marked the personality of Mary Mazzarello.

3.3. Close by helping to build up and restore

So far I have referred to the family of Jesus of Nazareth (the Lord), to the family of Don Bosco and that of Mother Mazzarello, in order to highlight the importance and the transcendence of the family in their lives. I am sure that in reading these pages many of us will recall one way or another our own personal experience of living in a family.

– A situation always more complex

It is a fact that the family, no matter how contradictory and controversial nowadays it is seen to be, continues to be the *structure of origin of human culture*¹⁸. It goes back to the beginnings of the human race and is found in all the known cultures, even if in a great variety of forms and models. In general, also today the majority of babies and children grow up in a family and it is there that they are marked in a way that will affect their whole lives. However, one cannot ignore and still less deny the fact that the family, as the structure of origin to which reference has already been made, is going through a profound transformation and a crisis. The causes of these changes and of this crisis are complex and very diverse.

We have seen the long list of situations and challenges that Pope Francis mentions between numbers 31 and 57 in the Apostolic Exhortation Amoris laetitia. Other authors refer to others, even though all have much in common¹⁹: situations of poverty unworthy of human beings that make a normal family life impossible; migrations that break up and divide so many families; the long absences of parents because of work commitments. Often it is the economic conditions that make it difficult for them to live together as a family. Very often it is the economic factors that determine family values, the family's plans, a precondition to fatherhood and motherhood being financial well-being; social structures which have a great impact and the influence of which affect everyone in one way or another.

To all of these can be added the anthropological crisis of models of liberation, that cannot be ignored. Facts such as: the promotion of a culture at odds with the family, that leads to a diminution in its social value/estimation and to the "normalization" and at times to the championing of marital infidelity; the rejection of motherhood and fatherhood in the name of personal freedom; the acceptance of the idea of a child as being in competition with or even as an obstacle to greater economic well-being. It is a climate ever more widespread and propagated suggesting the social irrelevance of the family.

Cf. David LE BRETON - Daniel MARCELLI (de), Dizionario dell'adolescenza e della giovinezza, LAS, Roma, 289-292

Finally one could mention the complex geography of so-called types of family: new family units, restructured families²⁰ as an emerging phenomenon due to the increase of “natural” children, an increase in the number of divorces, changing partners for cohabitation...; all phenomena that give rise to not only many different kinds of families (one-parent, reorganised, homo-parents), but also various kinds of cohabitation according to different criteria: marriage, free unions, civil contract unions (PACS), etc. To have a more precise idea of the complexity of this situation, as it exists in some parts of the world, it should be said that a reorganised family is one that is made up of one of two parents, the child or children of the first union and the partner of this parent. This is only one possible example because there can be a variety of similar models. The sociologist Irène Théry was able to indentify (already in 1993) 25 different kinds of reorganised families²¹.

All of this leads us to think that the institution of the family is something that is becoming ever more complex, without forgetting that the cultural differences in the five continents add many other elements to the complexity we are talking about.

Faced with this situation, we ask ourselves whether, starting from our position as educators, pastors and evangelisers there is anything we can do for families.

– Empathy as the first human response

Precisely in these contexts what is expected from us is the ability to empathise in the face of pain and weakness. It is an empathy that is very much connected to something that is characteristically our own: the family spirit.

By empathy we mean that thoughtful ability, that makes people able to understand the inner world of others. It makes it possible to be aware of their feelings, to understand their actions better, and the way they respond to particular situations. Empathy makes it possible in a certain sense to put oneself in another person's shoes. It helps the educators and the evangelizers of boys and girls and young people to understand the often complicated world of their families and become bridges and mediators in sensitive and important situations.

²⁰ Cf. David LE BRETON - Daniel MARCELLI, o.c. 290-291.

²¹ Cf. Ibid. 291.

In these difficult circumstances what is expected from us is empathy in the face of broken or patchwork families, or families that are deeply wounded in which selfish personal interests caused a breakdown. There are families in which it is the children above all who suffer deeply, or in which they become "hostages against the other spouse", as Pope Francis puts it²².

Empathy is needed from us in those life situations in which we have to help to build up relationships, to treat or heal the wounds; situations in which we can help to overcome fears, remembering as in the text from the bible, "not to quench the smouldering wick"²³.

Empathy when families, as will have happened also in our own, have to learn to be families by their mistakes. This needs humility and understanding, forgiveness and mercy, since in the family all have the right to forgiveness and all have the ability to forgive in order to build and to rebuild the family.

Empathy when we are called to accept our limitations and those of others. This gives every member of the family an opportunity to become enriched by the love that is being offered and to make others rich with their own gift, aware that gratuitousness is the starting point for building the family.

Empathy, finally in helping to build and to re-build lived situations.

²² Cf. AL, 245.

– Attitude proper to our family spirit

In the different situations in which it plays a part the Salesian Family around the world finds itself in a great variety of complex circumstances. Our boys and girls, together with their families, have the right to experience our ability to understand, to empathise, to appreciate their feelings, since having a deep and attractive family spirit is – and needs to continue to be – a special characteristic of ours.

This family spirit was fundamenal and a guiding principle for Don Bosco and it inspired him while he was beginning his work, dreaming about it, planning and sustaining it²⁴, so that love might always reign in it in an atmosphere of openness and familiarity. A feature of this family spirit should also be “the qualities of genuine brotherhood, affection, open-hearted friendliness, accompanied by a simple, cordial and welcoming human approach»²⁵.

Our young people and their families need to be able to have the experience that the Salesian houses in our Family throughout the world are places where life is cared for, their lives; places where one can expect that the doors are always open and that awaiting them there is a civilised atmosphere of welcome (full of human feeling) on the most important and often most difficult occasions in life. They ought to feel, as Don Bosco would have ensured, that they are always well received and never judged or condemned. And this by the fact that even when it has to be said that something is not possible or cannot be allowed, the point is made with the greatest respect for the dignity of the individuals, and with a sense of fairness and justice. In this way we shall not fall short in what should be our distinguishing features as the Salesian Family in the world.

3.4. In the school of Life and Love that is the family

This is one of the fundamental keys of the Apostolic Exhortation Amoris Laetitia and is something of the utmost importance for the contribution that we as the Salesian Family ought to be offering in response to the call that the Church is making on behalf of families: awareness of the great mission that families have, from their different standpoints, as schools of Life and of Love.

With other people, groups and institutions we shall be at the side of families, we shall walk together with them, but we can never substitute what is irreplaceable in families, that is their essential vocation to be “communities of love and of life”²⁶.

➤ A first contribution to be offered to families will be that of helping them to become aware that they really are the “patrimony of Humanity”²⁷ and the first and the shared school of humanity in which the vocation to love grows and is cultivated, since it is in families, at least as long as they have not been too deeply damaged, that things are considered not so much in terms of the advantage to the individual but as being to the benefit of all. Every member is recognised as being something good in themselves and, in general, preferential treatment is given to the weakest: the little ones, the sick, the handicapped and the elderly.

➤ Another special characteristic of the family is its being a school of life and of love because the family is the home, it is the hearth. This expression «hearth and home» in some of our cultures is full of affection and of human warmth – ‘making oneself at home’ – because it involves something much richer than the physical space of the house. «The hearth and home is the nest, the cradle of life. It is the special place for life, where it is welcomed responsibly, educated with generous dedication, celebrated joyfully, fed with the bread of work and tears, healed when injured, and mourned when it is no more»²⁸. For this reason when the family is missing it is very difficult to replace it. The social services of the State as far as is possible, can only compensate for or mitigate its absence. In fact «for the infant the family is a primary unlimited ‘resource’, and it continues to be so also for the adult»²⁹.

²⁶ VATICAN COUNCIL II, GS 48

➤ Families are accompanied in the concrete circumstances of their lives when parents are given the help they need – in some situations fathers or mothers who are struggling on alone – to understand the fundamental value of the affective support they are providing for their children. This means doing everything humanly possible to ensure that their children feel deeply loved, which helps them to grow up in a well-balanced and harmonious way, because love is like the fire that is kept burning in the hearth. «We love our children because they are children; not because they are beautiful, or for this or that reason. Not because they look or think as we do. We love them because they are children! A child is a child»³⁰, Pope Francis declares. It means accepting children as they are and devoting oneself to them, giving them time and attention. It is not enough for a father or mother to think that though they spend little time with them it is quality time. It is necessary that the amount of time is proportionate to the needs of the children, since someone who is unable to share their tiny interests and the smallest things in their lives, without noticing it runs the risk of slowly distancing themselves from being part of their experience.

➤ In the more stable families the life of the parents is characterized by their dedication, by that giving of themselves to each other in love and that giving of themselves together to their children. In the Apostolic Exhortation of Pope Francis strongly affirms that «every child has the right to receive love from a mother and a father: both are necessary for a child's integral and harmonious development»³¹. He continues «We are speaking not simply of the love of father and mother as individuals, but also of their mutual love, perceived as the source of one's life and the solid foundation of the family»³².

We know that it is not always possible to enjoy the presence of both parents. In the world there are millions of families in which the children are living with just the father or the mother, but that does not mean that we have to refrain from saying what a great benefit the witness of both parents is for the sons and daughters. At the same time whatever the make-up of the family may be it should never be forgotten that the dedication and selfless devotion of the parents shape the values that the children assimilate and prepare them in the best way possible to face up to the difficulties they will meet in life.

➤ The family becomes a school that prepares for life when within it dialogue, communication and mutual understanding are taught and learned. When these values are being lived in the family the children learn to listen, to converse, to share and to take an interest in whatever concerns their life together, the house and individuals. And we all know that being able to live together, to understand each other, to excuse and to forgive are attitudes that go together.

When such an atmosphere is fostered, the family becomes a place to live in which people look out for each other and think about what is best for the others who they respect and for whose ways they make allowances. They learn different attitudes that may seem contradictory but which prepare them for life when they are adopted in harmony:

³¹ Cf. AL, 172.

- dialogue and personal responsibility;
- autonomy and solidarity;
- taking care of oneself and seeking what is best for everyone;
- being assertive about one's proper place in the family and being able to forgive;
- a readiness to express one's own opinion and at the same time capable of listening and a respectful silence.

➤ In the family one also learns to recognise and to experience limitations. Nothing that happens within the family can be outside the concern of its members, even more so when the children are involved. It follows that the parents or the father or the mother when only one of them is head of the family wherever they may be or whatever happens have to keep everything in their thoughts and in their hearts. Parents are called to be attentive observers, capable of following their children with a caring heart, but also capable of setting limits to their children's freedom for their own good. «Vigilance is always needed and neglect is never beneficial... Obsession, however, is not education»³³. It is for this reason that the Pope tells us «What is most important is the ability lovingly to help them grow in freedom, maturity, overall discipline and real autonomy»³⁴.

➤ The most precious and essential virtues (love, faith, freedom, justice, respect, being hardworking, integrity...) put down roots in family life, and this apprenticeship undertaken in life with affection, is decisive and fundamental for the children. Consequently, it ought to be the constant concern of parents and educators to act with educational sensitivity to put down the roots of what is essential. It is in this context that efforts are made to educate³⁵ to freedom, to responsibility, to ethical and moral development, to affectivity, to empathy, to openness, to the care of others and of nature, as well as to love and to a responsible sexuality. All of this is a huge task in the formation of individuals and the family has a fundamental role; to carry it out it can rely on the help of other institutions and in particular from our convinced point of view on the help of the Church.

➤ Faced with the actual situation in many societies in which the most hoped for aspiration is for a comfortable and easy life so that comfort and well-being become the first and final goal and people are convinced that with money everything is possible, it is vitally important to educate families to a life of temperance and moderation to the consumption of what is necessary and not totally superfluous, to the value of simplicity of life. Parents who shower their children with an abundance of superfluities run the risk of neglecting what for them is more necessary, that is their guidance and principles, their affection and their love. In this regard Pope Benedict XVI declares: «Suffering is also part of the truth of our life. So, by seeking to shield the youngest from every difficulty and experience of suffering, we risk raising brittle and ungenerous people, despite our good intentions: indeed, the capacity for loving corresponds to the capacity for suffering and for suffering together»³⁶.

It is unfortunately true that there are many more families who are living in a «forced poverty» who cannot aspire even to what is necessary. We are aware that the distribution of wealth is not just. But it is opportune to point out that our help to families is demonstrated in our offering them guidance in the education of the their children in this regard, without ignoring the fact that this way of thinking could be even more important for some parents.

➤ The ability to commit oneself is vital in peoples lives, and it will be in the lives of the children . The family prepares for life when it teaches that being responsible individuals means making the right use of freedom and keeping one's word; making clear that exercising one's freedom is much more than deciding between what I like and what I don't like. It means being aware of the value of responsibility and of a spirit of hard work; from this point of view it is very important that in the family they learn that you can be free when you put your heart into what you are doing.

➤ Following our consideration of life and from the perspective of the values that motivate us, the great gift that parents can offer to their children is the process of handing on the faith, a committed and active faith. «The home must continue to be the place where we learn to appreciate the meaning and the beauty of the faith, to pray and to serve our neighbour»³⁷. We know very well that the faith is a gift of God and not the result of our actions «yet parents are the means that God uses for it to grow and develop»³⁸. Certainly as the Pope says in the same place this «handing on the faith presumes that parents themselves genuinely trust God, seek him and sense their need for him, for only in this way does 'one generation laud your works to another and declare your mighty acts' (Psalm 144,4)»³⁹.

➤ The challenges and the tasks so far considered speak to us about the «art of guidance and government» of parents or of the mother or father who in an heroic way are guiding the family. With the expression «the art of guidance and government» we are referring in this context, to the fact that every son and every daughter represents a unique task very similar to the production of a work of art which even though it may never be completely finished is considered finished to the extent that every child is capable of safely making their own way in life.

3.5. Decisive Salesian Pastoral Mission: ACCOMPANYING and CREATING PROCEDURES

What we have said so far with plenty of proposals and suggestions, allows us to offer to the Salesian Family faced with this exciting and relevant challenge, some pastoral and pedagogical guidelines starting with some questions:

- How do you accompany parents, married couples and those at the head of their own family?
- How do you accompany the children especially those in our own Salesian circles, so many boys and girls throughout the world?
- How do you accompany through our youth ministry, our family and parish ministry those young people who are already making plans to get married and raise a family?

The answers to these questions demand our pastoral initiatives, actions and decisions:

1. To take up in a determined manner the challenge of considering as our educative-pastoral priority that of giving attention to Families It has been said many times in so many assemblies, in Provincial Chapters and also in General Chapters. The time has come to declare in every Salesian centre in the world that it is not possible to think of a single educational and pastoral work with boys and girls and young people in which the need is not clear of how to be in close connection and communication with their families and how to involve them. «Enabling families to take up their role as active agents of the family apostolate calls for an effort at evangelization and catechesis inside the family».⁴⁰ We have to convince ourselves that it is not enough that the priority of the young as those to whom our mission is directed is clear to us. Today more than ever this task of education and evangelization is inseparable from the family.

⁴⁰ AL, 200.

2. To take decisive and appropriate steps to undertake accompaniment as a priority by means of practical concrete initiatives according to the various contexts:
 - Accompaniment of parents and married couples who are willing to accept it.
 - Accompaniment of boys and girls and young people in Salesian centres around the world that is real, especially in regard to difficult family and personal situations.
 - Vocational accompaniment of all the young people and in particular of those who are planning their way of life in marriage.
 - Accompaniment which in practical terms becomes a project of spirituality and of faith as giving meaning to life in the most diverse family situations with which we come into contact.
3. Helping families to educate and to grow with affection and the heart, with all that this implies in our educational system (Preventive). We know how slow the process of growth to human maturity is. After first being born comes the second initiation into life that consists in the transmission of values. For this reason «the children need that protected space and that affective security that they find in the love of their parents; and in their turn they strengthen and enrich the bond of love in the relationship between the parents»⁴¹ In our role as educators and evangelizers we have to give priority to this aspect. Along these lines we have to build up permanent bridges with parents in order to discover together how to cultivate in the families and in our centres for the benefit of their children, a welcoming, listening attitude, dialogue that avoids being authoritative without providing reasons, close relationships, giving people the time they need, personal contact, the affection that overcomes barriers and distances.
In the letter we have mentioned, Pope Benedict XVI, referring to the «educational emergency» underlines the need to educate on the basis of love: «It needs first of all that closeness and trust which are born from love: I am thinking of the first and fundamental experience of love which children have, or at least should have, from their parents. Yet every true teacher knows that if he is to educate he must give a part of himself, and that it is only in this way that he can help his pupils overcome selfishness and become in their turn capable of authentic love»⁴². We know very well what he is talking about if we think about Don Bosco, who asks of us that we not only love the young but that they know that they are loved. We need to be able to pass on to parents this message in a very convincing manner.

4. Accompanying and supporting parents in their mission of education, involving them as much as possible; sometimes parents themselves, even though they may very much want to take on the responsibility of being the primary educators, do not know how to do so. «Collaboration with youngsters' families should be intensified, since parents are the primary educators of their sons and daughters. To this end they should be offered in our works an educative climate rich in family values» the GC24 declared addressing itself to Salesians⁴³. We need to be creative; some initiatives have been successful in some periods but then have become less so. It is not always easy to motivate parents but this problem should urge us on to reflect even more, together with them, on what they really need. «In this regard, dialogue with parents at a deeper level is required in order to identify the ways in which it is possible to profit from the potential of the families themselves»⁴⁴.

⁴² BENEDICT XVI, To the Diocese and the City of Rome on the urgent task of education (January 21 2008).

⁴³ GENERAL CHAPTER XXIV of the Society of Saint Francis of Sales, Rome 1996, 177; Pascual Chávez, o.c. 41.

⁴⁴ Walter KASPER, o.c. 175.

5. Seriously taking up the task of helping parents in the education to love and in the sex education of their sons and daughters. Pope Francis in the Apostolic Exhortation referring to what Vatican II requested in the Declaration Gravissimum Educationis, exclaims: «We may well ask ourselves if our educational institutions have taken up this challenge»⁴⁵. Many indicators seem to suggest that as regards this responsibility in Salesian centres around the world there has been instead a retreat. It seems that the inherent difficulties have restricted us not a little. However, as educators (male and female) we feel the obligation to educate to love those to whom we are sent, and we are convinced that fostering in our houses an educational setting that is fully open to communication and affection is itself a great lesson about love. We are convinced of the need for suitable affective and sex education and for a careful catechesis that helps young people to understand the nature and the expression of love⁴⁶.
6. Offering in a Salesian manner our services and our help to parents and to families when they are dealing with difficult and critical personal situations. And while we may advise them in their personal problems as couples to seek help by having recourse to other professionals, we, as educators and pastors, can provide a very important bridge for the benefit of their children. One can easily understand that they may make mistakes in their married life and in their families. Our help as far as possible will consist in helping them to try to work on their relationship with each other, to find ways to maintain communication and recommend forgiving each other as an effective way forward and of believing in the possibility of a fresh start. Finally helping in the process of growth and maturity through the relationship with the other person.

⁴⁶ GENERAL CHAPTER XXIII of the Society of Saint Francis of Sales, Educating young people to the faith. Rome, 1990, 195-202,

7. Being an open house for everyone⁴⁷ in domestic churches within the one Church. In many parts of the world domestic churches have been the support and defence of the faith in times of persecution, of the lack of religious freedom, etc. Often parents and their children are far from any religious experience or unfamiliar with it. In situations like these the Salesian centres with their groups and associations, our religious communities, the various apostolic groups, prayer groups, Bible study or adult catechetical groups, voluntary service, etc., can all provide the opening and the spiritual setting favourable to the welcoming and integration of groups of parents and of families.

8. Accompanying young people in their planned way of married life. Is Christian marriage celebrated and lived as a sacrament perhaps a model that is obsolete and a thing of the past? It was Pope Benedict XVI, during the VII World Meeting of Families, held in Milan in 2012, who raised this issue, this challenge about marriage to young people declaring that «it is possible and a joyfilled experience, even though it takes an effort to live a faithful love, for always, open to life». It is of the greatest importance to help young people to discover the richness and the value of marriage. Young people «should be helped to perceive the attraction of a complete union that elevates and perfects the social dimension of existence, gives sexuality its deepest meaning and benefits children by offering them the best context for their growth and development»⁴⁸. From the faith perspective the Christian ideal is given support by the conviction that it is beneficial for people to commit themselves by means of their free choice and together to set themselves an elevated and ambitious goal which is very different from a too idealistic view of marriage. For this reason:

⁴⁷ Walter KASPER, o.c. 159-160,

⁴⁸ AL, 205.

- We ought to help young people to discover that it is a good thing to want what marriage and the family have to offer when they are lived in a positive way.
 - Help them to believe confidently that from the perspective of love, this way of life, if this is their vocation and God's call, is possible for them.
 - Let us walk beside them helping them to become aware in a realistic manner of the dangers of a starry-eyed approach that can lead to disappointment when all their dreams are not realised.
 - Help them to discover that in Christian marriage there is something of extraordinary beauty based on the fact that love falls within the realm of God. This is the meaning of the sacrament as an effective sign of the Love of God within them.
9. Helping parents and families understand, especially in times of difficulty, that, from the spiritual point of view, the life of every marriage and of every family unfolds on the basis of the law of progression and gradualness⁴⁹, and likewise on a development that is continuously renewed and deepened in the Mystery of Christ. There are many values that can be shared with parents and children, for example: the value of constantly exercising tolerance and patience; spending time with each other; giving expression to signs of love, affection, tenderness and respect; gratitude and love for one another. Part also of this experience are family prayers and the celebration of faith. «It is a beautiful thing to be with adult couples who in spite of their advanced age, show in a mature way that they are in love. It is an expression of a human experience preserved and made a success from the human and spiritual points of view»⁵⁰.

tion to families, and emphasising the priority of mercy as the essential value of the Gospel. All of this ought to have an influence on our educative and pastoral practice. We need to be fully convinced of the need to follow the criterion of gradualness, which is a characteristic of pastoral activity with families, and use it in our vision, our planning and our educative and pastoral practice.

11. To all of this can be added many other initiatives and criteria, which in the light of what I have suggested to you, I invite you to think about at local level and in your different situations. The following may serve as examples:

- Let us not to be afraid of proposing human and spiritual values to our young people and to their families. The families often need this and are grateful for it.
- As far as is possible let us contribute to ensuring and promoting in families the sense of the joy of Loving.
- Let us ensure that in our houses, as an expression of our availability, there is hospitality and a welcome especially for those to whom we are sent and their families.
- In our centres let us provide opportunities for married couples to become front-line animators, guides and companions, educators and apostles among other married people who feel the need for them.
- We are convinced that our commitment to the accompaniment of families can provide an extraordinary opportunity to contribute to the eradication of every form of discrimination against girls and women.
- Let us profit from the examples of "good practice" regarding families that there are in many of our houses, sharing them among ourselves and making them known to others.
- With honesty let us assess our attitude of empathy with mothers and fathers who are often living in situations of sorrow and anxiety.
- Let us harness ever more effectively the pastoral energies of our Educative Pastoral Communities, taking full advantage of the fact that our educative and evangelizing activity is community based.

- Let us so act that Salesian houses throughout the world will present a face and a model of the Church that will help parents and families to discover the faith or rediscover it should it have become weak or been abandoned.
- Finally let us tirelessly and decisively return to the atmosphere of Valdocco.

I conclude this appeal which I address to the whole Salesian Family, for greater attention to be given to families, to their sons and daughters in the different places where we find ourselves, making my own a special passage from the Apostolic Exhortation and taking from it the final prayer to the Holy Family of Nazareth.

«Our teaching on marriage and the family cannot fail to be inspired and transformed by this message of love and tenderness; otherwise, it becomes nothing more than the defence of a dry and lifeless doctrine. The mystery of the Christian family can be fully understood only in the light of the Father's infinite love revealed in Christ, who gave himself up for our sake and who continues to dwell in our midst. I now wish to turn my gaze to the living Christ, who is at the heart of so many love stories, and to invoke the fire of the Spirit upon all the world's families»⁵¹.

PRAYER TO THE HOLY FAMILY

*Jesus, Mary and Joseph,
in you we contemplate
the splendour of true love;
to you we turn with trust.*

*Holy Family of Nazareth,
grant that our families too
may be places of communion and prayer, authentic schools of the Gospel and small domestic churches.*

*Holy Family of Nazareth,
may families never again experience violence, rejection and division;
may all who have been hurt or scandalized find ready comfort and healing.*

Holy Family of Nazareth, make us once more mindful of the sacredness and inviolability of the family, and its beauty in God's plan.

*Jesus, Mary and Joseph,
Graciously hear our prayer.
Amen*

2. GUIDELINES AND DIRECTIVES

2.1 YOUTH MINISTRY AND FAMILY

Fr Angel FERNÁNDEZ ARTIME
Rector Major

It contains a “guidance - directive” of the Rector Major expressed through a letter addressed to the Provincials on the theme of the family, in the work of Salesian Youth Ministry.

Dear Father Provincial,

in his final address concluding the works of the XIV Ordinary General Assembly of the Synod of Bishops, Pope Francis affirms: “We have seen, also by the richness of our diversity, that the same challenge is ever before us: that of proclaiming the Gospel to the men and women of today, and defending the family from all ideological and individualistic assaults. [...] In effect, for the Church to conclude the Synod means to return to our true “journeying together” in bringing to every part of the world, to every diocese, to every community and every situation, the light of the Gospel, the embrace of the Church and the support of God’s mercy!”

With the same feeling I’m addressing you because I would like that Pope Francis’ wish may become for our Congregation a further “journeying together” on the roads of the education of young people, especially the poorest and those most in need. A “journeying together” always more prone to consider the family as a protagonist of the Salesian educative and pastoral experience.

The Department for Youth Ministry, starting by the special attention that the Congregation has given to the family in our GC27 together with the Synodal process promoted by Pope Francis, is leading a process of reflection by involving all the Provinces in view of the International Congress on Youth Ministry and Family which will take place from the 27th of November to the 1st of December 2017.

At this point, I would like to ask each you, my dear Provincial Fathers, to dedicate a moment of reflection together with your Provincial Council around the theme of the family according to the guidelines and questions proposed in the following pages.

Your contribution will represent a precious assistance to the Department for Youth Ministry in preparing the International Congress on Youth Ministry and Family. Your reflection will also light up the way to the process of animation that together with the General Council, we are carrying on around the theme of the family, which, as Congregation and as Church, are called to discover always more as a privileged field for the proclamation of the Good News.

With deepest gratitude for your collaboration,

1. REFLECTION

In the Final document of GC27 we, Salesians of Don Bosco, acknowledge that “an emerging apostolic front that we have begun to take better care of is family ministry.” We want this ministry “to be seen in strict connection with youth ministry.” (CG27, 20).

Such pastoral urgency is also present in Pope Francis’ analysis in Evangelii Gaudium: “The family is experiencing a profound cultural crisis, as are all communities and social bonds. In the case of the family, the weakening of these bonds is particularly serious because the family is the fundamental cell of society, where we learn to live with others despite our differences and to belong to one another; it is also the place where parents pass on the faith to their children.” (Pope Francis, Apostolic Exhortation Evangelii Gaudium, 66).

As for the Synod of Bishops, in its Final report it reaffirms that for us “the family is the primary and fundamental “school of humanity” (cf. GS, 52). [...] The Church, expert in humanity and true to her mission, announces with deep conviction the “Gospel of the Family” (Synod of Bishops, The vocation and mission of the family in the Church and the contemporary world, Final report, 2).

QUESTION 1:

WHICH CHALLENGES DOES THE FAMILY PRESENT TO YOUTH MINISTRY IN YOUR PROVINCE?

2. REFLECTION

The Frame of Reference of Salesian Youth Ministry describes the Educational and Pastoral Community as “a centre that welcomes the greatest possible number of people interested in the human and religious aspects of the area.” Then it states that “one clearly identified pastoral challenge is to achieve a fuller sharing with the family, which is the primary and indispensable educational community.” (Salesian Youth Ministry, Frame of Reference, Chap. V, 1.D).

In Evangelii Gaudium Pope Francis presents this challenge as “a breakdown in the way Catholics pass down the Christian faith to the young” for “growing numbers of parents do not bring their children for baptism or teach them how to pray”, and that there is also “a certain exodus towards other faith communities”. (Pope Francis, Apostolic Exhortation Evangelii Gaudium, 70).

The Synod of Bishops has chosen a pastoral approach that recalls us in a special way: “we note the importance of connecting youth ministry with family ministry” (Synod of Bishops, The vocation and mission of the family in the Church and the contemporary world, Final report, 90).

As Salesians of Don Bosco, at the GC26 we had already proposed the commitment to integrate the family ministry into the provincial and local pastoral and educative project, by fostering the formation and the involvement of lay people as collaborators (GC 26, 99, 102, 104). (GC 27, 71.5).

QUESTION 2:

IN YOUR PROVINCE'S PROJECTS, SUCH AS THE OPP, THE SEPP AND OTHER PASTORAL DOCUMENTS, WHICH DECISIONS HAS THE PROVINCE TAKEN OR IS GOING TO TAKE IN THE AREA OF YOUTH MINISTRY AND THE FAMILY?

3. REFLECTION

We are glad to notice that in many Provinces there are several pastoral initiatives in favour of the family, both as protagonist and object of our pastoral action. Such initiatives enable us to meet the challenge of “a spiritual ‘desertification’, as the result of attempts by some societies to build without God or to eliminate their Christian roots.” The family is becoming for us “a parched place where faith nonetheless has to be preserved and communicated” (Pope Francis, Apostolic Exhortation Evangelii Gaudium, 86).

Among other initiatives, the Synod of Bishops affirms that family catechesis is of great assistance as “an effective method in training young people and parents to be aware of their mission as evangelizers of their own family” (Synod of Bishops, The vocation and mission of the family in the Church and the contemporary world, Final report, 89).

Within our Salesian pastoral experience, several proposals are already at work in this area:

- “the emergence of counselling centres in support of education to help with family problems, run by both lay people and religious, is an interesting and promising development;
- the same can be said of groups that help parents in educating their children to the faith;
- EPCs are committed to making parents aware of their educational responsibility, in the face of new emerging patterns of education;

- EPCs are paying particular attention to accompanying young couples and actively involving them in the EPC.”

Thus, the importance of making “a careful community discernment, in order to identify and respond to the most urgent problems of the family, making use of all the resources available.”

All of this invites us to foster “a greater involvement of the family in the SEPP” (Salesian Youth Ministry, Frame of Reference, Chap. V, 1.D).

QUESTION 3:

WHICH PROPOSALS IN YOUR PROVINCE CAN BE QUALIFIED AS GOOD PRACTICES, WHICH ARE INNOVATIVE AND ABLE TO SUCCESSFULLY MEET THE NEW CHALLENGES CONCERNING YM AND THE FAMILY?

2.2 MISSIONARY APPEAL OF THE RECTOR MAJOR TO THE SALESIANS OF DON BOSCO

Fr Angel FERNÁNDEZ ARTIME
Rector Major

It contains a letter of the Rector Major, addressed to all the Confreres of the Congregation, which the Rector Major defines as “a missionary appeal ‘ad gentes’ to all the provinces all over the world and to all those confreres who feel called by the Lord to live the Salesian vocation in this particular form: to be available to be Salesian missionaries ‘to all peoples, to externs, for life’”.

Dear Confrères,

I am writing this letter today, December 8th, 2016, on the 175th year since the commencement of the Salesian Oratory, when, as Don Bosco himself tells us, he recited that Hail Mary with Bartolomeo Garelli. I do it with a precise intention. This is a favourable day to launch a missionary appeal “ad gentes” to all the Provinces of the world and to all those confrères who feel called by the Lord to live their Salesian vocation in this particular form: being available to be Salesian missionaries “ad gentes, ad exteros, ad vitam” (“to the peoples”, “abroad”, “for life”). My appeal is a voice that must resound in all the Provinces and Salesian presences in the world in order to favour generous responses.

The fundamental reason for this appeal is threefold:

- The Evangelizing mission in the world requires from us, Salesians of Don Bosco, that we go beyond, that we open up even more to give a response to so many requests that continually come to us from the Church, for a mission of evangelization in diverse places and among many peoples.

- There are some presences of the Congregation we can no longer sustain because in some nations of the five continents there are no Salesians who can offer their service, whereas in other places the apostolic strengths are more numerous. I think in particular of the youth that are waiting for us in the context of Project Europe, in the Middle East, in countries with a Muslim majority, in the islands of Oceania, in South Sudan, in Mongolia, in Siberia, Cambodia and Malaysia, as well as among the young migrants of the American continent... and in many other places!
- The third motivation is intimately linked to the missionary passion of Don Bosco. After the great missionary challenge of Argentina, in 1875, to arrive, in due time, in Patagonia, it was – as some of his successors stated – as if he lived only for that project. Fr Albera writes: “Missions were always the heart of his heart and it was as if he lived only for them... He spoke about them with such an enthusiasm, that we were amazed and strongly edified by his inflamed love for souls”¹.

Don Bosco himself, in the note he sent in 1880 to Pope Leo XIII, explicitly says: “Foreign Missions were always a subject cherished by the Salesian Congregation”².

On the occasion of the journeys I made in these years and that allowed me to visit 44 Provinces, I often said that we have to reflect on this fact: if Don Bosco had decided to limit the field of the pastoral educative activity of the Salesians only to the needy youth of Italy – which would have been a legitimate priority, considering that Italy was very much in need of his Salesians – and if he had not had the great passion and the great missionary vision that spurred him at every moment, today the Salesian Congregation would be a small congregation, limited to one nation. It was the missionary spur of our Father that made the Congregation universal in the Church and in the world.

Dear Confrères, for the above reasons, I now address to you this strong appeal and invite you all to generosity. First of all I ask the generosity of those confrères who hear this explicit call from the Lord. Then I ask the generosity of the Provinces, Rectors and, in particular, of Provincials, that they do not stifle in any way the missionary unrest of young confrères and of no other confrère, confining their view and their interest only to their own Province. We cannot forget our origins and our charismatic identity.

You know well how we proceed in these cases. As soon as the Rector Major receives a call, a letter or an email from a confrère who expresses this wish, the Dicastery for the Missions begins a serene, serious and profound discernment with the Confrère and with his Provincial. Everything is then brought to the knowledge of the Rector Major. Discernment often highlights the suitability of the candidate; but sometimes it is not so. In any case, we only look for the good of the persons and of the mission.

This is my appeal, my dear Confrères.

I invite you to pray for this intention in the entire Congregation. Many are the persons who have not yet been reached by the announcement of the Gospel. Many young people need a friend, a brother, a father whom they will be able to find in the Salesians they will meet.

May Mary Help of Christians bless this generosity of yours and may Don Bosco continue to accompany us in our commitment to being true missionary disciples of Jesus.

Yours affectionately

Fr Ángel FERNÁNDEZ ARTIME, sdb

2.3 RENEWED COMMITMENT TO RELIGIOUS DISCIPLINE

Fr Francesco CEREDA

Vicar of the Rector Major

Constitutions assert that the Vicar of the Rector Major “is particularly entrusted” with “the care of religious life and discipline”¹. Starting from this constitutional statement, I was wondering what is to be understood today as religious discipline and what commitment is to be promoted in this regard in the Congregation. This is required, among other things, by the project of the Rector Major and of the General Council for the 2014-2020 period; in fact it requests to “make Provincials and Provinces responsible for the care of religious discipline by fostering a culture of vocational fidelity and of prevention of lapses in religious discipline”.

Religious life and discipline are not separated from one another; rather, they are realities that recall and integrate one another. Religious life is the hidden treasure and the pearl of priceless value; in its turn, religious discipline is the investment to make so as to obtain them, selling whatever one has². Religious life does not subsist without religious discipline; neither does the latter have any meaning without the first. In fact, the witness of consecrated life requires a constant commitment to discipline, and vice versa discipline aims at showing the charm of consecrated life.

The awareness of the identity of Salesian consecrated life has grown during these past years. It is “a living memorial of Jesus’ way of living and acting”³ in the footsteps of Don Bosco. In our General Chapter 27, this identity is seen in its testimonial relevance and is deepened in its threefold mystical, prophetic and diaconal dimension. Salesian consecrated life is more and more understood and lived in the totality of its aspects as “confessio Trinitatis” (confession of the Trinity), “signum fraternitatis” (sign of fraternity) and “servitium caritatis” (service of charity)⁴; and the Salesian is more aware to commit himself to be mystic in the Spirit, prophet of fraternity and servant of the young.

³ JOHN PAUL II, Consecrated Life, Vatican City, 1996, n. 22.

Nevertheless, the sense and practice of religious discipline must still grow. At present, Provinces are committed to living vocational fidelity and to preventing lapses in religious discipline; they pay more attention in accompanying the confrères who are experiencing difficulties in living their Salesian vocation; they try to solve irregular situations. Because of this there is a greater responsibility today with regard to an authentically lived consecrated life, and therefore the need is felt for a renewed commitment to religious discipline⁵.

1. Discipleship and Discipline

The word “discipline”, from the Latin verb “discere”, means learning, drill, instruction, training. “Discipline” is necessary in all sectors and walks of life: at school and at work, in the family and in the office, in sports and in social relationships. In order to learn music, a craft or a foreign language, the “disciple” must obey certain rules, follow the advice and corrections of their instructor, do an exercise that implies repetition, fatigue, sacrifice, patience and perseverance. At the beginning, discipline is mainly an exterior practice, but it is gradually interiorized until it becomes self-discipline and a life-style.

Also in the life of faith there is a journey of learning and a discipline that accompanies it. In the Gospel, the disciple of Jesus is presented as the one who sits at the feet of the Teacher and listens to his teaching, so as to walk later after him faithfully following in his footsteps. However, at the school of Jesus one does not learn only a world vision or a religious wisdom. In fact, He is a particular Teacher because the contents of his teaching coincide with His person. He himself is the Word to welcome, a Word that is the way, the truth and the life. The "discipline" we learn from Jesus is therefore an initiation to the mystery of God, to Whom he gives us access, allowing the disciple to live not only like Him, but in Him.

⁵ It is important to resume what Rector Major Fr Egidio Viganò had already proposed in a letter of his; Cf. E. VIGANÒ, New Commitment in Religious Discipline, in “Acts of the General Council” n. 293, Rome 1979. See also these other letters of his: Saint John Bosco, in “Acts of the General Council” n. 310. Rome 1983; Be on the Watch, With Your Robes Hitched up and Your Lamps Alight, in “Acts of the General Council” n. 348, Rome 1994.

Jesus, who to those who listen to him speaks with authority and acts with power, lives in his conscience in an attitude of profound obedience to the Father and of full docility to the Holy Spirit. While he tells us "Learn from me", he lets himself be led in the way of a demanding handing over of himself even unto the cross. Because of this, the letter to the Hebrews daringly asserts that, "though He was a Son, yet He learned obedience by the things which He suffered"⁶. Jesus invites those who follow him to enter into this filial obedience; those who do not assume the demands of this call cannot be his disciples⁷. Therefore there cannot be any discipleship without discipline.

In the light of these considerations, we can understand that the most authentic nature of Christian discipline, of which religious discipline is a particular expression, is to be found in the Trinitarian dynamism of obedience and glorification that Jesus lived in his Passover of death and resurrection. By calling us to follow him and proposing the paradoxical discipline of life that it implies, Jesus initiates us into living as children who gratefully and humbly accept the sovereignty of God and who do not walk any longer under the burden of the flesh, but rather in the vivifying strength of the Spirit. The profound core of religious discipline is therefore becoming docibilis a Spiritu Sancto (capable of being taught by the Holy Spirit), as was understood so well by venerable Fr Giuseppe Quadrio, who made of this motto his programme of life.

⁷ Lk 14: 26-27, 33.

Religious discipline is, therefore, an essential part of our “discipleship” in the following of Jesus. Nevertheless, this “discipleship” does not aim solely at our sanctification. The Church reminds us that “to some [...] for the sake of all, God gives the gift of a closer following of Christ in his poverty, chastity, and obedience”⁸. And it re-affirms this in the Apostolic Exhortation Vita Consecrata, stating: “Thus, while those who follow the evangelical counsels seek holiness for themselves, they propose, so to speak, a spiritual ‘therapy’ for humanity, because they reject the idolatry of anything created and in a certain way they make visible the living God. The consecrated life, especially in difficult times, is a blessing for human life and for the life of the Church”⁹. In fact, it is religious discipline inherent in consecrated life that demolishes the idols of pleasure, of possession and power, and gives witness to the world that God is the sole Absolute that suffices of his own.

2. Formative Commitment to Religious Discipline

It is difficult to accept the consequences that derive both at personal and community level from this evangelical vision of discipleship and discipline. The following of Christ, in fact, is always realised within well defined historical contexts, in which other styles of life are widespread, models in competition with the Gospel, different priorities by which to “discipline” one’s own existence. For example, in consumer society, the culture of liking prevails, and so does the culture of what gratifies in the moment and offers immediate satisfaction; those who grow in this context, find it difficult to understand the sense of sacrifice, renunciation, perseverance. On the contrary, in other cultures the burden of social conventions and the paternalistic use of authority may lead to a formal observance and to a formative style unable to foster personal responsibility.

⁸ CIVCSVA, Essential Elements in the Church’s Teaching on Religious Life as Applied to the Institutes Dedicated to Works of the Apostolate, Rome 1983, 7.

⁹ JOHN PAUL II, Consecrated Life, 87.

The assimilation of religious discipline consolidates with the passing of time and requires a constant care for formation. In fact the loss of the sense of one's own identity as a consecrated person, the shallowness of spiritual life and the weakening of apostolic passion often lead to an irregular life and to an exterior observance. Religious discipline is the sign of the vitality of a Congregation. Without religious discipline great things are at stake: prayer becomes sporadic, the practice of the evangelical councils minimalist, community life weak, and apostolate among the young loses momentum. In particular, the lack of fraternal life fosters individualism: the confrère takes distance from the community, lives in his own world, gradually shifts towards mediocrity and bourgeoisification, avoids asceticism and is in search of an easy life.

In formation work, it is not enough to transmit enthusiasm for the ideals of apostolate or generically to appeal to the sense of responsibility of the individual. Adhesion to the Lord Jesus requires the concrete assumption of a consistent style of life, of which it is important to understand the profound motivations and for which it is necessary to be trained with commitment. What St. Paul affirms in the first letter to the Corinthians, when he compares Christian life to a race in the stadium, concerns us too, like athletes who train for the race, so as to win the prize, we too are in need of a formation and a discipline that enable us to the mission: "Everyone who competes for the prize is temperate in all things. Now they do it to obtain a perishable crown, but we for an imperishable crown"¹⁰.

Among the most spread attitudes in present society that today mostly challenge religious discipline and lead to that logic of spiritual worldliness often denounced by pope Francis, we can indicate in particular three aspects, which require particular attention in initial and ongoing formation: the search for self-fulfilment, individualism and spontaneism. Obviously it is not possible here to give an adequate talk on each of them. It is however easy to understand that they respectively concern the way in which to understand personal freedom in the relationships with God, with the others and with oneself.

The narcissistic quest for self-realization is opposed to the evangelical logic of handing oneself over and of the free gift of oneself; it does not accept the paschal dynamics according to which life is found only by losing and donating it. It leads to self-referentiality, to verify the validity of the choices on the basis of immediate gratification, of personal results and success, and not on faith and the fecundity of the sacrifice done with love and out of love. It weakens the availability to let oneself be guided by God, the sense of renunciation motivated by love, the commitment to those aspects of the mission that are not gratifying, but require a humble, hidden and unselfish work.

Individualism, in its turn, favours retreating into oneself and a scarce knowledge of the dynamics of the community. Community life is understood in an instrumental way, as a context or background of personal protagonism, and not as the place of the experience of God and the condition for pastoral fruitfulness. This attitude, which regretfully is widespread also among us, constitutes a distortion of the right esteem for autonomy and personal initiative that find their vital space in communion with the brethren and not in an alleged self-sufficiency.

Spontaneism, finally, is a feature of contemporary culture that, in its thirst for genuineness and the refusal of conventions, tends to confound freedom and spontaneity, considering as authentic only the choices that are done without any effort and with immediacy. In this way one forgets that true freedom is the fruit of a long journey of liberation from one's selfishness and of a patient learning the capability to choose the true good. For example, spontaneism leads to the illusion of being able to do a true journey of prayer without a serious commitment of fidelity to the times of prayer, without constancy in following a method for meditation, without respecting the moments of silence. In the apostolic field, one has the illusion of being an educator without patiently learning the Salesian art of assistance; it confounds creativity and flexibility with a shallow style of action, that does not reflect and does not plan nor verify; it lets one live under a constant improvisation, mindless of educative journeys and processes.

3. Spiritual Sense of the Norms

The discipleship of Jesus and the very structure of human freedom require, as was already said, a discipline that rules the existence, delivering it from the risks of improvisation. It must help to turn the divine gift of vocation into a coherent practical behaviour that is shared in the Congregation to which one belongs and that can be recognised and witnessed to in front of all. Religious discipline has a fundamental pedagogical function.

For this form of life to be possible, it is necessary that, besides inspirational documents and texts, the Congregation also have rules that translate into a normative way the demands of the common vocation. Feeling bound to their observance is a component of religious profession that cannot be underestimated, nor be reduced to simply organizational motivations. The law is not the foundation of faith, but it recalls and realizes the way to accept the gift of divine grace.

The observance of rules in consecrated life is a spiritual matter. In fact, only love can grasp the spirit of the law that no letter alone will be able to transmit. Love and law do not exclude one another and are not confounded, but they reciprocally call one another. No one who loves despises the law of God, neither in its highest expressions, like the ones contained in the Scripture, nor in its manifold historical translations, like the teachings of the Church, the rules of a Founder, the Constitutions of one's own religious Congregation.

Besides its pedagogical value, the law also has a second function that, though subordinate to the first, is not less important. This is the function of protecting the community from abuses and deviations. If no norm can ever fully transmit the charm of the grace that is to be found in the event of the call and of the testimony of those who live it, its task is in any case that of indicating with clarity the borders out of which one is no more in the path of the charism and on the way to sanctity. The law must warn against deviations, point out dangers, indicate behaviours that are incompatible with the identity of a spiritual family and betray its spirit. Precisely in this time when the ecclesial community greatly suffered from the grave scandals of some of its members, it is again possible to recognize that a disciplinary norm constitutes, even in its most severe and sanctioning aspects, a gift that cannot be underestimated.

Pope Benedict XVI, in his homily on the Feast of the Sacred Heart at the closing of the year for priests, proposed a courageous reflection on this point. He affirmed: "Today we can see that it has nothing to do with love when conduct unworthy of the priestly life is tolerated"¹¹. Discipline is important also in its dimension of control and sanction: as long as forms of concupiscence exist in us, it is providential that there be commandments that help recognize them and fight them off, even if it were also for some grave transgressions for which there is the threat of sanctions.

The rules of religious life, therefore, from the most severe and solemn to the most simple and wise ones, cannot be underestimated nor ignored. Even though they are not the foundation of consecrated life, yet they are the fruit of a consolidated wisdom.

¹¹ BENEDICT XVI, Homily on the Solemnity of the Sacred Heart, Vatican City, 11 June 2010.

Those who truly love the Lord Jesus and the charism of the founder, know how to value them for what they are: a precious aid for liberty. However, those who follow them perfectly but without that interior disposition of the heart that is given by love, actually would only pretend to observe them.

Diverse are the contents of religious discipline and the sources from which it draws¹². The first one of these is in the Magisterium of the Church; as part of our discipline we follow the indications that are given us in various forms: the Code of Canon Law, the guidelines of Vatican II, the teachings and decisions of the Pope, the documents of the Holy See, ... The Constitutions and Regulations are a second point of reference; in them we find ourselves in front of an original ascetical programme made of behaviours and attitudes, sensitivities and aspirations, moral qualities and virtues, that make it possible for a consecrated person to be recognised as belonging to a definite Congregation. General Chapters are another source of religious discipline; they are an exercise of discernment to discover what the Spirit indicates in a precise historical moment. Eventually, the Superiors help the confrère and the communities to know the will of God; the fraternal colloquy is also part of religious discipline, and requires openness and trust from the individual confrère and availability and welcoming from the rector; likewise, obedience to the decisions and dispositions of the superiors, active participation of the confrères in the meetings at community and provincial level are also part of religious discipline.

4. Salesian Charism and Religious Discipline

Each founder left to his spiritual children, together with the charm of his sanctity and the enthusiasm of his mission, also a peculiar vision of religious discipline that is consistent with the characteristics of his own charism. Don Bosco too, under the inspiration of the Spirit, elaborated his own concept of religious discipline; this however, before finding it in his teachings, is to be found in the example of his life. He was always concerned, for himself and for the others, with a strong pedagogy of self-control; in this way one can become an ascetic of daily life.

Even though the public image of don Bosco is characterized by his driving joy, there also is in his personal experience a consistent presence of that element of struggle and sacrifice that is a constitutive part of paschal dynamics. This is clearly testified to by those who had a close knowledge of him. Don Bosco expressed this vision, for example, in the dream of the pergola of roses: his life seems beautiful to the eyes of all, but the roses inevitably present hidden thorns, which can be trod on only with the spiritual combat of obedience and mortification. To those who have chosen Salesian life, he tells in this dream: "If you are out for a nice time, you had better go back. If not, follow me"¹³.

The diverse testimonies of the first Salesians converge in showing that don Bosco had a very rigorous discipline of life and that the heroic renunciations to which he submitted himself were born from his zeal for the apostolic mission. Austerity to him was not a dimension added to his pastoral dedication from outside, but it was the internal condition to live it. In this sense, he identified the core of Salesian discipline in the motto "work and temperance", considering both work and temperance in a strongly apostolic logic: work is the service of God and of the young in the forms required by obedience; temperance is renunciation to all that opposes it.

This is the logic of "da mihi animas, cetera tolle", that our Constitutions reflect in article 18: the Salesian "does not look for unusual penances, but accepts the daily demands and renunciations of apostolic life: he is ready to suffer cold and heat, hunger and thirst, weariness and disdain wherever God's glory and the salvation of souls require it”¹⁴. Likewise in article 71 they recall the statement of don Bosco who tells us: “Substitute acts of penance with acts of obedience”¹⁵. The Salesian lives the mystics of work and of “da mihi animas” and the ascesis of temperance and of “cetera tolle”; there cannot be one without the other.

Religious discipline for don Bosco consists in the observance of the rule. Because of this he insists on the concrete adhesion to the Constitutions: “The observance of our Rule is burdensome. [...] And then, my dear sons, do we wish to go to Heaven in a carriage? We became religious not to enjoy ourselves but to suffer and to earn merit for the next life. We consecrated ourselves to God not to command but to obey; not to attach ourselves to creatures but to practise charity towards our neighbour, moved solely by the love of God; not to live a comfortable life but to be poor with Jesus Christ, to suffer with Jesus Christ on earth, to be made worthy of his glory in Heaven”¹⁶.

Already in his first circular letter he stated clearly: “The first object of our Society is the sanctification of its members. Therefore each one on entering will strip himself of every other thought, every other concern. Whoever enters to enjoy a calm untroubled life, have comfort [...], would have a twisted purpose and his would no longer be that Sequere me (follow me) of the Saviour’s, since he would be following his own temporal interests and not the good of souls. [...] Our basis for this are the words of the Saviour who says: “[...] Whoever wants to be my disciple, [...], let him follow me in prayer, penance, and especially by denying himself, accepting the cross of daily tribulations and following me. [...] But how far does he follow him? Until death, and if necessary, even death on a cross”¹⁷.

As can be seen, religious discipline as outlined by don Bosco is a faithful echo of the Gospel, with the charm and scandal of its paradoxical demands. Don Bosco proposes it with the sweetness of him who made of the preventive system a true spirituality and intends to facilitate in the confrères the practice of good with loving kindness, rather than confining himself to repressing abuses. This paternal and respectful loving kindness however is not shallow or lax; it rather expresses the conviction that people have to be drawn on the way of good with goodness and with the strength of the example, rather than with coercion and imposition; with the medicine of mercy, rather than with the arms of rigour¹⁸.

Conclusion

As a Congregation today, we find favourable conditions to assume a positive vision of and a renewed commitment to religious discipline. The promotion of the culture of vocational fidelity, the prevention of lapses in religious discipline and the solution of irregular situations certainly favour this assumption; on the other hand this remains a challenge.

However, due to frailty and weaknesses, we may sometimes find ourselves in front of lapses in religious discipline regarding prayer, the evangelical councils, community life, the apostolic commitment or economy. In such cases all of us, and especially those who exert in the community the service of authority, must keep vigil on the behaviour and style of life of the confrères and the communities through accompaniment and fraternal correction. In the case of grave faults against discipline, as for instance the "delicta graviora" (more grave crimes), these require to be sanctioned and to intervene promptly; in such situations, the responsibility is serious and we must pay greater attention to guarantee the personal and spiritual good of the confrères, to avoid the harm these behaviours may cause to other people, and to avoid discredit on the Congregation and its action.

¹⁸ JOHN XXIII, Gaudet Mater Ecclesia, Speech for the Opening of Vatican Council II, 11 October 1962, 2.

Let us therefore together, as a Congregation, assume the commitment to religious discipline with a renewed spirit and with full awareness: we will thus be able to overcome the risks that even today threaten our vocation so as to live our Salesian consecrated life to the full.

2.4 RENEWED ATTENTION TO THE SALESIAN BROTHER

Fr Ivo COELHO

General Councillor for Formation

The publication of Identity and Mission of the Religious Brother in the Church by the Congregation for Institutes of Consecrated Life and Societies of Apostolic Life at the end of the Year of Consecrated Life is a good occasion to give renewed attention to the vocation of the Salesian Brother. GC27 asks us to “continue to reflect both on the aspect of consecrated life and on the specific nature of the Brothers with regard to fraternal life and the mission.”¹ Interestingly, as we will see below, reflection on the Salesian Brother opens up, in fact.

1. The journey made so far

While almost all our general chapters have taken up the theme of the vocation of the Salesian Brother, let us begin with the significant document of GC21 (1978), “The Salesian Brother: A lay religious vocation at the service of the Salesian mission.” Fr Viganò’s famous letter, “The lay dimension of the Salesian community” (AGC 298, 1980) was an authoritative comment on this document of GC21. In 1984 GC22 gave us the definitive text of the Constitutions, and in 1986 there followed The Project of Life of the Salesians of Don Bosco. In 1989 we have another fruit of the decisions of GC22: The Salesian Brother: History, Identity, Vocation Ministry and Formation.² In 2001, Fr Vecchi wrote “The Beatification of Salesian Brother Artemide Zatti: A Startling Precedent” (AGC 376), and accompanying this was a letter of Frs Nicolussi and Domenech, “A renewed and extraordinary commitment to the vocation of the Salesian Brother.” In 2003, Fr Cereda published “Care and Promotion of the Vocation of the Salesian Brother: A concrete commitment for the whole Sexennium” (AGC 382). GC26 presented a vision of our same consecrated vocation in its two forms, ministerial and lay, highlighting what is common along with the specificity and the reciprocity of the two forms. Finally, in 2013, the Rector Major with his council approved the revision of certain parts of the Ratio referring to the formation of the Salesian Brother³. From this journey of reflection on the Salesian Brother, certain themes can be seen to emerge: community, mission, consecrated identity.

1.1 Community

GC21 situated the Salesian Brother and the Salesian Priest squarely within the Salesian community: “it will not be so much the individuals who will perpetuate his [Don Bosco’s] ideals as his communities, ‘formed of priests and laymen,’ closely united to each other by deep brotherly ties.” For this reason, the chapter went on, “the clear precise dimension of each Salesian can only be studied and evaluated adequately in the context of a brotherly and apostolic community.” (GC21, 171) The chapter speaks, in fact, of the “Essential mutual relationship between the Salesian brother and the Salesian priest.” (GC21, 194-196)

This great intuition of GC21 was corroborated and deepened by subsequent developments in the ecclesiastical magisterium. Thus Christifideles Laici places the different states of life within “the Church that is Communion,” and notes that they “are linked among themselves in such a way that they are ordered to one another,” different yet complementary, each with its unmistakable character and yet related to one another and placed at each other’s service (CL 55). In the three documents on the states of life within the church – Pastores Dabo Vobis, Christifi-

deles Laici, and Vita Consecrata – we have an emergent “theology of sign.” What is specific to each state really belongs to all, but is embodied in that state so as to serve as a sign and a prophecy to the other states. Thus, for example, service is not the mark of the deacon in an exclusive way. The whole church is called to serve; the deacon is an icon of service, a reminder to all in the church of our common vocation. In like manner, the lay state bears witness to the sacredness of created realities, and the religious state is a sign of the eschatological character of the whole church, reminding us all of our vocation to be so united one day with God that there will be neither marrying nor giving in marriage. (CL 55)

Thus when GC21 tells us the lay dimension is the specific characteristic of the Salesian Brother⁴, it is clear that this must be understood in relation to the community and to the Salesian priest. Fr Viganò understood this very well: in his letter soon after the chapter, he pointed out that the Salesian Brother is an embodiment of the lay dimension and “secular slant” that characterizes the congregation as a whole, and that the clarification of the vocation of the Brother is a test for the clarification of the lay element in our Society⁵. The Salesian Brother, we might say, is an icon of the lay dimension of the congregation. In the words of GC24: “To his consecrated brethren he recalls the values of creation and of secular realities,” inviting them to collaborate with the laity and reminding them that the apostolate goes beyond strictly priestly and catechetical activity; “to the laity he recalls the values of total dedication to God for the cause of the Kingdom. To all he offers a particular sensitivity to the world of work, attention to the local environment, and the demands of the professional approach associated with his educative and pastoral activity.”⁶ To the religions of the world, we might add, he is a prophecy of the beauty and sacredness of created realities.

⁴ “The lay dimension is the concrete form in which the Brother lives and operates as a Salesian Religious.” (GC21, 178)

But the Salesian Brother is an icon also of communion and fraternity, as suggested by Identity and Mission of the Religious Brother in the Church. This document has occasioned surprise because of the way it focuses rather exclusively on the religious brother as a sign of communion and fraternity. Fraternity, however, cannot be a marginal point for us who believe that God is a mystery of communion and of love. For Pope Francis, the central question before the church today is communion. The consecrated life is confessio trinitatis, and in his letter introducing the Year of Consecrated Life the pope reminded us that consecrated life is not meant to be shut up within itself: its vocation is to expand communion in ever-widening circles, in an expansion that knows no limits.

So the Salesian Brother has a very special place within the Salesian community, the educative and pastoral community, the ecclesial community, and the human community: always and everywhere he is an icon of fraternity. As GC21 had said: “He [the Brother] lives in constant fidelity to his specific vocation and becomes, together with his confreres, a sign of that new and permanent brotherhood established by Christ” (GC21, 176).

1.2 Mission

A second point that emerges in the reflection of the congregation is the charismatic centrality of mission. GC22 (1984), in its elaboration of the definitive text of our Constitutions, chose to centre all the elements of Salesian life and work explicitly around mission. This may be seen not only in the contents of the articles but also in the structure: “Sent to the young in communities following Christ.” So it is in the light of mission that we have to ask about the identity of the Salesian Brother and the Salesian priest.

A study of the Index of our Constitutions reveals that we have only two articles on the specific identity of the Brother and the Priest: C 45 and C 116 (and, interestingly, 6 articles on the priest that regard authority). Unfortunately, the Index does not mention an article of great importance, one that indicates to us, clearly and synthetically, the identity of the Salesian, whether Brother or Priest: C 98, the formation experience:

Enlightened by the person of Christ and by his Gospel, lived according to Don Bosco's spirit, the Salesian commits himself to a formation process which will last all his life and will keep pace with his maturing in other ways. He learns by experience the meaning of the Salesian vocation at the various moments of his life and accepts the ascetical demands it makes on him.

With the help of Mary, his Mother and Teacher, he gradually becomes a pastor and educator of the young in the lay or priestly state which he has embraced.

Pastor and educator of the young: this is our fundamental identity, the supreme genus, that which is common to every Salesian vocation. Only after this comes distinction: "in the lay or priestly state which he has embraced," and this identity-in-difference becomes concrete, in the initial stages of Salesian life, through a formation that is basically equivalent (C 106), and always through the effort to learn by experience the meaning of the Salesian vocation (C 98), to discern the voice of the Spirit in the events of daily life (C 119). It is within the educative pastoral community that we manifest our common identity as educators and pastors, along with the specificity and reciprocity of the two forms of our vocation. Within this community, it is important today to ensure greater visibility to the Salesian Brother.

Mission is not, of course, simply work. Our mission as pastors and educators consists in revealing God. We are called to be epiphany, as was Jesus: signs and bearers of the love of God for the young, vultus misericordiae.

1.3 Consecrated identity

But the Salesian mission belongs to all the members of the Salesian Family. We Salesians share in it as religious. As Fr Cereda notes in his letter of 2003, there is need to talk also about the dimension of consecrated life. Especially in the light of the insistence on the sharing of our mission with the laity, the clarification and appropriation of our consecrated identity is of vital importance.

Uncertainties in the understanding of consecrated life have had serious consequences for the living out of our Salesian vocation in its two forms. On the one hand there is the temptation to reduce the vocation of the Salesian priest to its priestly dimension alone, and that too very often to a merely functional understanding of the priesthood, when not to a clericalist hankering for power, money and status. On the other hand there is the inability to understand and value the vocation of the Salesian Brother, with tendencies to either a clericalist compensation or else a secularist reduction⁷.

Vita Consecrata (1996) was a great clarification of the place of consecrated life within the church. But what does it mean to be a “living memorial” of Jesus (VC 22)? What difference do the vows make to the way we share in the Salesian mission? What, we might ask, is the meaning of Jesus’ celibacy? As always, nothing that Jesus does is exhausted on the plane of the functional. Jesus is always revealing to us the Father. He celebrated the value of marriage and yet chose to be celibate. He proclaimed in word and deed the good news that our supreme vocation is communion with God. The celibacy of Jesus is a powerful anticipation and revelation of the “life of the resurrection,” where there is neither marrying nor giving in marriage. Consecrated persons are called to be precisely living memorials of Jesus, eschatological signs, in their poverty, chastity and obedience. In an age that has discovered the beauty of body and sexuality, the created world and freedom, and that yet blights all by exaggeration and overkill and an absolutizing of what is fragile and relative, consecrated persons are spiritual therapy, sign, prophecy. And it is our life that is a sign. The ministry of the priest remains valid even if the priest is unworthy, but the consecrated person is a sign only through the limpidity of his life. There is no chastity in a religious who is not chaste⁸.

In a church that is not only Petrine but also Marian, and Marian before being Petrine, consecrated life takes its place at the Marian heart of the church. For the Petrine ministry is destined to pass, but the Marian is the ultimate vocation of the whole church⁹. Consecrated persons are a sign and a reminder to the whole church of its final vocation and destiny. And also here the Brother is a sign to his priest confreres in the community. His vocation is the Salesian life in pure form¹⁰, *in statu nascendi*¹¹, a permanent reminder to his priest confreres of their consecration.

2. The path ahead

Reflection on the figure of the Salesian Brother thus leads us to a new appreciation of the Salesian consecrated vocation in its two forms. In the present guidelines, however, as we have said, we would like to give renewed attention to the lay form of our vocation. The statistics reveal that the number of Brothers in initial formation is going down: only 7.90% as compared to 11.92% in the congregation as a whole, and even lower in regions with greater growth in vocations (5.06% as of 31 December 2015). This cannot be taken to mean that all is well with the large number of aspirants to the priesthood. The question of the Salesian religious identity is urgent for both forms of our vocation.

In the last few years, the congregation has exerted itself to take care of the vocation of the Salesian Brother, as for example through the revision of the Ratio concerning the initial formation of the Brother, and the setting up of centres for the specific formation of Brothers (CRESCO, Guatemala City; Sunyani, Ghana; Yaoundé, Cameroon; Shillong, India; Parañaque, Philippines; and Turin – though of these, Sunyani and Turin are not functioning any more, while Shillong is temporarily suspended). In the present letter we would like to propose some more strategies and lines of action at various levels of the congregation.

3. Conclusion

In a church that is communion, the vocation of the Brother can be understood only in relation to the Salesian Priest, the community, the mission, and the consecrated life. As Salesian consecrated persons we are signs and bearers of God's love to the young, living memorials of Jesus. In his letter at the beginning of the year of consecrated life, Pope Francis insisted precisely on this:

I am counting on you 'to wake up the world', since the distinctive sign of consecrated life is prophecy. As I told the Superiors General: 'Radical evangelical living is not only for religious: it is demanded of everyone. But religious follow the Lord in a special way, in a prophetic way.' This is the priority that is needed right now: 'to be prophets who witness to how Jesus lived on this earth....'¹⁴

And again:

What in particular do I expect from this Year of grace for consecrated life? That what I once said might always be true: 'Wherever there are religious, there is joy.'¹⁵

Through the intercession of Bl. Artemide Zatti, Bl. Stefan Sandor and Ven. Simaan Srugi, let us pray for a Salesian consecrated life that is transparent, visible and above all joyful. Joy is contagious, and happy Salesians are the best publicity for our vocation. Let us not forget the via pulchritudinis! (EG 167)

4. ACTIVITIES OF THE GENERAL COUNCIL

4.1 Chronicle of the Rector Major

Below are some of the main activities of the Rector Major from August to November 2016.

– August 2016

After the conclusion of the summer plenary session of the General Council, the Rector Major participated in the Word Youth Days (WYD) celebrated in Cracow. He left for Poland on July 26th together with his secretary, participated in the first day of the Salesian Youth Movement 'Forum' at world level, and later took part in various events of the WYD.

After his return to Rome, on August 4th he went to Mornese to participate in the ceremony for the perpetual profession of several sisters and the celebration of various anniversaries of the FMAs, since on that day they celebrated the 'day of the Institute'. He returned to Rome after a short visit to Valdocco, and on August 9th he went to Spain, to his hometown to meet his family and at the same time have some rest.

On the 25th, accompanied by his secretary, he went to the city of Panama to begin his visit to the Province of Central America where, till September 6th, he could visit five of the six countries of the Province: Panama, Costa Rica, Nicaragua, Honduras, El Salvador.

In the city of Panama, in the morning of the 26th he received the visit of the Archbishop, Msgr. José Domingo Ulloa, and afterwards he encountered the students and the educative community of the Don Bosco Technical Institute and a delegation of the FMAs and the Daughters of the Divine Saviour, as well as representatives of a public school with the presence of Salesian Cooperators. Towards noon, accompanied by his secretary and by the Salesian Rector, he was welcomed in the government palace by the President of the Republic of Panama, Juan Carlos Varela, with whom he had lunch, and also shared some projects for a future development of the Salesian presence in that country. In the evening the Rector Major met the Salesians present in that nation.

On the 27th in the morning he met the groups of the Salesian Family and in the afternoon he visited and presided over the Eucharist in the Don Bosco Basilica, a place of pilgrimage for the entire nation, since one of the caskets containing the relics of Don Bosco that traveled around the world, in preparation for the bicentenary of his birth, is being kept there.

On the 28th in the morning, accompanied also by the Provincial, Alejandro Hernández, he arrived in San Jose, the capital of Costa Rica. After lunch he visited the community in Cartago, where he met with the confreres, the Salesian Family and young people of the SYM.

On the 29th he visits the community of CEDES Don Bosco and the Don Bosco College of Zapote. In the first house he meets representatives of the students and in Zapote he presides over the Eucharist and meets the Salesian Family in Costa Rica. Back in San José, he has a meeting with the Salesians and before dinner he visits the “Casa de la Virgen” where for many years Blessed Sister Maria Romero lived. There he encounters the FMAs of the house, among whom there is also a sister who lived with Sister Maria.

On the 30th, the Rector Major, together with those accompanying him, goes to Managua, in Nicaragua, where he has a busy day. He begins with a meeting with the students of the schools of the Salesian

Family in Managua, then there is a festive lunch with the Salesians and lay collaborators and members of the Salesian Family, with the presence also of the Cardinal Archbishop of Managua, Leopoldo Brenes, Salesian Cardinal Miguel Obando y Bravo, and the Salesian confrère bishop of Estelí, Msgr. Juan Abelardo Mata Guevara. In the afternoon he visits the house of Masaya where he meets the youth of the SYM in the country and the young people of that house. Later on he leaves for Granada, where on the 31st he spends the morning with the Salesian confrères of Nicaragua and in the afternoon he encounters the Salesian Family.

– September 2016

In the morning of September 1st, the Rector Major, accompanied by his secretary, arrives in Tegucigalpa, capital of Honduras. Then he has a meeting with Cardinal Oscar Rodríguez Maradiaga, SDB, who shares lunch with the community. In the afternoon the Rector Major meets the Salesian Family of Honduras and afterwards the Salesians; then he presides over the Eucharist in the Church dedicated to St. John Bosco. During dinner he also meets Msgr. Luis Santos, SDB, Bishop emeritus of Santa Rosa of Copán.

tive Praxis in the Government of the Province." Also in this view of spreading new virtuous economic lines, in Latin American countries he discussed a text entitled "Economy as Part of the Preventive System", where typically economic concepts are revised through a key of interpretation and a Salesian style.

The month of November begins with the speech of the General Economist at the conference of bishops of the Western European region on 'Fundraising' and 'Financial Administration' that was held in Warsaw (Poland). His research, focused on Fundraising and on Crowdfunding applied to projects with a religious background, allowed not only the knowledge and publicizing of the Salesian work in the world, but it also provided an impulse to the search for new benefactors for Salesian houses. In addition, the commission has a specific workshop on the figure of the Salesian Economist, together with the explanation of the "Best practices in financial management." 5. DOCUMENTS AND NEWS

5.1 A significant initiative, The Salesian Biblical Association (ABS)

During the recent seventh world convention of the Salesian Biblical Association (ABS), held at Ratisbonne, Jerusalem, 21-27 August 2016, I was impressed by the biblical competence of the participants, but even more by their clear Salesian identity and desire to collaborate in the mission of don Bosco. This, I think, is something very precious, because it is part of the raison d'être of this association, and it made me think that the ABS is an initiative that deserves to be better known, appreciated and promoted within the congregation.

The ABS was born in Cremisan in 1982, in response to the need felt to work out a Salesian response to the observation of Dei Verbum, that the goal and result of scientific study of the Bible is pastoral action.¹ The Cremisan meeting itself – the first world convention of Salesian biblists – was convoked at the initiative of Fr Egidio Viganò, Rector Major. Already in this meeting, the statutes of the association were drawn up; they were approved ad experimentum by Fr Viganò on 19 March 1983, and definitively on 8 December 1989, with a revision being approved by Fr Pascual Chávez on 6 May 2005.

The objectives of the association are as follows:

- a) Updating of and collaboration among the members, whether professors or pastoral agents involved in catechesis and/or biblical apostolate.
- b) Promotion of biblical animation in the Congregation and sharing of experiences within the Salesian Family.
- c) Biblical service in the Church according to the Salesian charism.

Since 1982, the ABS has met every five years: at Frascati and Turin in 1998, with the participation of Fr Viganò and Cardinal Antonio M. Javierre, SDB; at Tlaquepaque, Mexico in 1993; at Cremisan, 1999; at Krakow in December-January 2005; and at Ratisbonne, Jerusalem in 2011 and in 2016. The conventions are centred around basic aspects of the Salesian charism or else on topics of contemporary interest in the church. Since the fourth convention the ABS has opened its doors to other members of the Salesian Family. Since 1989, the association has also been a member of the Catholic Biblical Federation.

Besides the annual Bolletino di collegamento containing information about the biblical activities of the members, new initiatives, and publications, the Acts of the various conventions have also been published: Parola di Dio e carisma salesiano (1989);² Parola di Dio e evangelizzazione dei giovani. (1994);³ Parola di Dio e spirito salesiano (1996);⁴ La tua parola è luce sul mio cammino (2000);⁵ Ripartire da Cristo, Parola di Dio (2005);⁶ Atti del VI Convegno Mondiale dell'ABS (2011).⁷

In addition, the association also offered reflections to the members of GC26 under the title Passione apostolica. “Da mihi animas” (2008),⁸ and another to GC27, entitled Testimoni della radicalità evangelica. Una riflessione biblica e salesiana (2014),⁹ also available in Italian and English. In the bicentenary of Don Bosco’s birth, the ABS published another volume of lectio divina: Luz para mis pasos. Lectio divina sobre las citas bíblicas de las Constituciones SDB (2016), also available in Italian and English.¹⁰

It is right to acknowledge also the contributions of many members of the ABS in different areas of the congregation and of the church: study trips in the Holy Land organized by the Depart-

In the near future, the association would like to offer Salesians a two-week retreat-cum-pilgrimage to the Holy Land in Italian, Spanish and English, as well as a two-week pilgrimage for youth animators from the Italian-speaking area. I hope there will be a good response to these initiatives.

As I write about the ABS, I find it opportune to make a few general considerations about the place of the Word of God in Salesian life.

Let me begin by recalling that the Word of God is "the first source of all Christian spirituality."¹¹ I feel the need to say this clearly in the light of a temptation with which I am all too familiar, to downplay the importance of the Word in favour of a spirituality or mysticism that goes "beyond the Word." I have always felt that it was in the light of this pervasive New Age influence that John Paul II invited the whole church to a rediscovery of the ancient practice of lectio divina,¹² and that GC25 proposed it as a practice for Salesians and for young people.¹³

It is amazing to see the importance that Don Bosco gave to the Word, in a context that was quite different from our own post-conciliar one. He described the Christian as "one who is guided by the divine Word,"¹⁴ and the Companion of Youth as a book of devotions adapted to the times and to young people, providing religious ideas "based on the Bible."¹⁵

Don Bosco's successors have followed his example. Fr Paolo Albera called the Bible "the liber sacerdotalis par excellence," and asked that the study of the Bible "be given precedence over every other study."¹⁶ Fr Egidio Viganò pointed out that the Word of God is not so much a response to our questions as an initiative of God that calls us into question. The educator, he said, must be conscious of and loyal to precisely this characteristic of the Word of God. His pedagogical preoccupation must not lead him to ignore his pastoral commitment as prophet of the gospel.¹⁷ The Rector's manual promulgated by Fr Viganò is incisive on this point: "We who are so active have to be convinced that every action springs from the intimate movement of the heart by which God unites us to himself. In this way our actions are a consequence of the Word, whom we receive and who reveals Himself to us, and of the free interior consent of a loving heart. We are not just responding to stimuli which come from the environment, nor even to some sort of vital impulse or an irresistible 'will to accomplish.' It is rather the fulfillment of His will."¹⁸ Fr Pascual Chávez, in his turn, is passionate: "I yearn for the day when we could dedicate a bit more of our time to welcoming Jesus and hearing his word, 'the only thing necessary' (Lk 10,42)."¹⁹ If it is God who calls us and entrusts young people to us, we must have his Word in our hands each day, so that we might "walk side by side with the young so as to lead them to the risen Lord.” (C 34) Our recent general chapters have also insisted abundantly on the central place of the Word of God in our lives.²⁰

The ABS is one of the expressions of the love of the congregation for the Word of God. It is an organ of collaboration and coordination of all Salesian biblical experts and pastoral agents that is in the process of involving the Salesian Family in an ever more significant way. It is marked by a deep sense of belonging to the congregation, as witnessed by the themes it chooses to study and the contributions it has made to various general chapters and to the promotion of lectio divina. The present letter is a warm acknowledgement of its spirit and activity, and at the same time an invitation and encouragement to all Salesian biblists to form part of the association in some way. This is not merely a question of “what’s in it for me?” – for surely there are larger and more prestigious associations, meetings and conferences, in which we must no doubt be present. It is a question of a celebration of our fraternity, and at the same time also of what we can do together to accompany the congregation and the Family in its response to the Word and in its service to those to whom we are sent.

We will continue to be Salesian educators only if we take the Sacred Scriptures daily into our hands (C 87), allowing ourselves to be transformed by them (DV 25). Only thus will we be able to help our confreres and the members of the Salesian Family, and above all the youth, to discover the hidden treasure that we encounter in the word of God – the person of Jesus Christ

Let us entrust ourselves to the heart of Mary, and let us entrust to her also the work of the ABS. We ask that we might belong to the school of Mary, so as to learn from her to welcome and to contemplate the word, to keep the word in our hearts and to proclaim it with joy and enthusiasm.

5.3 Dispositions for the General House and other communities depending on the Rector Major (RMG)

Here below find some dispositions of the Rector Major and his Council concerning the General House and the other communities directly depending on the Rector Major (altogether identified with the abbreviation RMG).

By official decree No. 16/0426 dated November 24th, 2016, the Rector Major, Fr Ángel Fernández Artime, after obtaining the consent of the General Council, delegated to his Vicar, Fr Francesco Cereda, the necessary powers of animation, care and government of the communities directly depending on the Rector Major. In the same decree the Rector Major also formed a council – made up by the General Economist and two other General Councillors, appointed for three years – to help the Vicar of the Rector in carrying out those tasks.

The communities directly depending on the Rector Major, which are thus affected by the decree are: the community “Blessed Michael Rua” of the General House; the community “St. Francis de Sales”, with headquarters in Vatican City; the community “San Callisto” in Rome; the two Salesian communities in Eritrea, “San Giovanni Bosco” in Asmara and “St. Justin de Jacobis” in Dekehare.

These are communities for which, over the years and for different reasons, it was considered appropriate that they refer directly to the Rector Major.

Although these communities do not constitute a juridical circumscription, in order to guarantee for them the specific service of the major Superior, the Vicar of the Rector Major is thus delegated, to fulfil the tasks envisaged in art. 161 of the Salesian Constitutions (inherent in the figure of the Provincial).

In exercising these functions Fr Cereda will be joined by the Economist General, Bro. Jean Paul Muller, and two General Councillors, appointed for three years – at present Fr Ivo Coelho, General Councillor for Formation, and Fr Guillermo Basañes, General Councillor for the Missions – in what concerns the implementation of the tasks prescribed by art. 165 of the Constitution and by articles 156 and 157 of the General Regulations (regarding the Provincial Council).

This Decree will be effective as of today, December 1st, 2016, and is valid until further notice. The representation of these communities at the General Chapter will be defined in a subsequent decree.
